NO BREAK AS BRITISH GENERAL STRIKE IS CARRIED ON INTO SECOND WEEK

MINISTRY TAKES ALL NEWSPRINT NOW IN BRITAIN

All Supplies of Paper for Dailies Not in Hands of Publishers Taken Over for Production of The British Gazette, Government's Newspaper Organ, During General Strike; Government Says Country Is Quiet, With Few Disturbances.

London, May 10, 7 p.m.—A Government communique issued to-night says the country is quiet, with few disturbances, but that where these occurred they threatened to become sharper. The police are in full control of the situation.

"While there are many individual cases of strikers in the various trades and services returning to work," it adds, "the general strike as a whole continues unabated throughout the whole country."

"The success of the authorities in maintaining the feeding and vital services of the people must not obscure this grave fact or the increasingly wasteful consequences to all classes."

The Trades Union Congress late to-day issued a statement saying satisfactory conditions from its point of view had been reported in all districts affected by the general strike throughout Great Britain.

Reports received during the day were:

"Quiet and orderly and all solid. Solidarity still the motto. Spirit and organization superb. Morale splendid."

London, May 10.—The Government to-day commandeered all supplies of newsprint not in the hands of the publishers.

The scarcity of coal has already resulted in the closing of some of the large works dependent on it. The furnaces of a number of big steel and tinplate works at Swansea, Wales, have been drawn and the Teeside steel works are closed, the latter rendering 30,000 idle.

At the same time reports, especially from the Midland districts, that numbers of strikers are returning to work as non-union labor were current, though it is said the union strike as a whole remains largely intact.

TRAINS INCREASED

London, May 10.—The beginning of the second week of the general strike throughout Great Britain found transportation facilities for the thousands of city workers much improved. There was good service on the underground lines in London, as well as an increased number of busses.

The stores in the West End of London greeted a larger number of customers.

In the Labor district of Poplar, all the public houses were closed to-day, in the majority of cases because their supplies of liquor had been exhausted. A similar state prevailed in the Stepney district. Both districts were quiet this morning and no interference with traffic had been reported up to noon.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE

The situation in the provinces appears to be improving.

Work on the Avonmouth docks is proceeding satisfactorily.

Hundreds of troops, with an armored car, are stationed in Bristol.

Many bus and tram men are returning to work in Bath and other centres, including the South Wales coalfields district, where the strikers are conducting themselves moderately.

Eight food ships are being unloaded at Glasgow.

Seven arrests were made in Edinburgh for street disturbances during the week-end. Tram service in the Scottish capital is nearing normal.

FOOD TRAINS

A number of food trains are running between London and the principal provincial cities and the London Railway Companies claim a considerable increase in train service, with men returning to work.

FOOD SHIPMENTS GUARDED BY TROOPS

Military Convoys in Streets of London Are Outgrowth of General Strike

Leaders of Strikers Describe Proceeding as Ridiculous and Unnecessary

London, May 10.—Those persons who are opposing the general strike in Great Britain are making much capital out of the assertion the strikers are trying to starve the country by preventing the distribution of food. It is declared by them that all sorts of obstruction and intimidation have been used in the neighborhood of the London docks to prevent the withdrawal from storage of stocks of flour badly needed for public use. They assert the calling out of the flour mill workers at Birkenhead was a further indication of this intention.

STRIKERS' STATEMENT

The British Worker, newspaper organ of the strikers, says the convoy of cavalry and armored cars which yesterday guarded food trucks from the Victoria Docks to Hyde Park was an attempt to delude the public into the belief the country is in danger.

"There was no risk of attack whatever," says the newspaper. "The lorries were as safe as ordinary traffic in ordinary times. The object of this ridiculous and unnecessary demonstration was to make the people afraid by creating a belief the strike had reached violent and revolutionary aims."

158 TRUCKS OF FOOD

Under convoy of sixteen armored cars and flanked by cavalry, 153 motor trucks, loaded with food, were moved through the streets of London from Victoria Docks to Hyde Park.

An official report says it was the hostility of the dockworkers and their comrades in the East End to releasing the food in the dock warehouse which made necessary the spectacular military display. On the other hand, it was recalled that the Trades Union Congress, before the commencement of the strike, had declared against any interference with the food supplies.

Meanwhile, the Government continues to declare food supplies are unrestricted and says delivery is going on smoothly.

The Government, in a statement at noon to-day, said introduction of the military convoys insured ample food supplies for London. The military demonstrations of the last few days, it was asserted, had greatly disheartened the Trades Union Congress and had created the deepest impression among the population of London's dock land.

A. J. Cook Would Close All Saloons In Great Britain

London, May 10—A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, in advocating the closing of the public houses until the end of the general strike throughout Great Britain, declared at a strike meeting yesterday:

"We need clear heads in this struggle. If I had my way, I would close every 'pub' down."

Mr. Cook, like the other Labor leaders, announced readiness to make peace honorably.

Viscount Grey, who held the post of Foreign Minister when the Great War broke out, repeated in a broadcast statement last night that the wisest counsel was to withdraw the general strike order and get back to negotiations.

$300,000 FIRE LOSS IN ONTARIO VILLAGE

Tannery Building in Woodbridge Destroyed; 100 Persons Made Idle

Toronto, May 10—Loss of almost $300,000 was caused by fire this morning which destroyed the two-story building of the Woodbridge Tannery, the sole manufacturing industry in the village of Woodbridge, Ontario, throwing almost 100 persons out of work.

The structure, with the equipment and stock is a total loss. The wind, blowing in a favorable direction, probably saved a large section of the village from the flames.

Leather goods were shipped from the factory to almost every part of the world and almost seventy-five per cent. of the people of the village were dependent on the industry in some way or another.

William Mitchell was born in the Durham Township, Que., in 1851. He was the son of Thomas and Margaret Mitchell, who came to Canada from Ireland in 1841. After attending public schools of Durham, he entered the employ of a railway company in Maine, later going into the lumber business in Durham, and then in Drummondville, Quebec, where he retained his home. He married in 1876, Cadora, daughter of George H. Goddard of Danville, Quebec. He was president of Drummondville Bridge Company and a director of the Richmond, Drummond, Yamaska Fire Insurance Company. Sir Wilfred Laurier summoned him to the Senate in 1904.

The unit has already made application for a board of conciliation under the Lemieux Act.

OAK BAY TALKS OF COURT MOVE IN WATER ISSUE

Mayor Pendray Seeks View of City Water Group on Offer of Cut

City Officials Are Asked to Sponsor Eleven-cent Offer to Oak Bay

Events in the Oak Bay-Victoria water dispute to-day turned on independent actions by the heads of both municipalities.

Reeve Anscomb, for Oak Bay, penned a letter to the city from the Oak Bay council saying that it regarded the fair price of city water as something less than six cents per 1,000 gallons, instead of the 12.2 asked, and urging the city to join issue with it in the Supreme Court as to a determination of a basis of arbitration.

REPORT TO-NIGHT

Mayor Pendray's move, taken independently of the Oak Bay communication, was in the form of a proposal to the city water committee that an olive branch be extended to the neighboring municipality in the shape of an eleven cent rate with irrigation rebates. The water committee is discussing the proposal this afternoon and will have a report ready for the City Council session to-night, it is understood.

The Oak Bay letter received by the city this morning was "without prejudice," and read as follows:

OAK BAY'S LETTER

"On December 28th last we wrote to your Water Commissioner asking if you were prepared to renew the present agreement re water supply for five years.

"On December 31 last he replied that the City Council had approved his recommendations that any new agreement should be for three years only, that the price per thousand gallons would be 11 cents, and that, failing acceptance, the price should be submitted to arbitration under the 'Esquimalt Water Works Company Winding Up Act, 1925.'

"On February 16, 1926, your Commissioner advised us that the City Council had adopted his recommen-

$400,000 FIRE IN CITY OF EDMONTON

Factory of Great West Garment Company Almost Destroyed

Edmonton, May 10—One of Edmonton's largest industrial plants, the Great West Garment Company's factory, was badly damaged by fire early to-day, with a loss estimated at $400,000. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have caused the outbreak, which left only the walls and a portion of the second floor of the three-story building intact. Three hundred and eighty-five employees, mostly women, are out of employment and the stock was nearly all destroyed.

Firemen Jack Koch, James Blatchford and Alex. Stewart were hurt during the fire by falling debris and broken glass.

U.S. Forces Will Allow no Fighting Between Factions at Bluefields

Managua, Nicaragua, May 10—The United States naval forces at Bluefields have declared Bluefields and El Bluff, at the entrance to the harbor, neutral zones, and will permit no fighting within the two limits.

The revolutionists are reported to have left both places and to be entrenching outside, awaiting the Government forces, now on the way to attack them.

The revolutionary leader, Louis Bertran Sandovel, is a follower of General Luis Mena, who headed the 1912 revolution. General Mena at present is in prison.

Prairie Wheat Season Is Making Favorable Start

Winnipeg, May 10.—The favorable weather of the past week and continuing warmth of the week-end make this week's crop report of the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway avery optimistic one. Rain varying from light showers to several hours' precipitation covered all sections of the three prairie provinces. While wheat seeding is not entirely completed, a great many farmers have finished and are proceeding with oats and barley, or getting land into shape for reception of those seed. High winds have been unusually prevalent this Spring, and have had the effect of drying out the top soils and causing some seed to be blown out, subsoil moisture appears to be adequate everywhere, taking everything into consideration, conditions are decidedly good, and the rains of the week-end furnished necessary moisture to create rapid germination.

Winter crops of wheat, rye and alfalfa, concerning which there has been some apprehension owing to unusual Winter conditions with less than average snowfall, appear to have come through the ground in good shape.

The labor supply and demand appears to be about normal for this time of year.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL PLANTS MAPLE ON SOLARIUM SITE

Simple Ceremony at Mill Bay This Afternoon; Schooling Plans

Impressive by reason of its simplicity was the little ceremony at Mill Bay this afternoon, when His Excellency the Governor-General, Baron Byng of Vimy, visited the site of the proposed Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children and planted a tree in commemoration of his visit. Ideal weather brought out the beauty of the surroundings of sea and countryside and emphasized to the members of the vice-regal party as well as to the spectators the eminent suitability of the spot for its beneficent purpose of healing, by nature's methods, the little crippled and undernourished bodies which will be accommodated when the solarium is a realization.

His Excellency was accompanied by Lady Byng and members of the vice-regal suite, and was welcomed on arrival at 3.30 by Dr. Cyril Wace and the following members of the executive committee: Mrs. Curtis Sampson, Sir Richard Lake, Dr. Irene Hudson, Mrs. W. Peden, Mrs. A. Booth, Mrs. V. S. MacLachlan, Mrs. R. Taylor, Mrs. Beveridge, Miss Ravenhill, Miss J. Hammersley and Chas. Williams.

R. BYRD AND HIS AIDE SEE NORTH POLE FROM AIR

Aeroplane Journey From King's Bay, Spitzbergen, to Top of World and Return Occupies Fifteen and One-half Hours; Triumphant Explorers Congratulated by Amundsen and His Party.

New York, May 10.—An aeroplane has flown over the North Pole for the first time. Lieut.-Commander Richard Byrd, United States Navy aviator, sailed over the Pole yesterday in an aeroplane, the first of nine Arctic expeditions this year to achieve its goal, and he now shares with the late Admiral Robert E. Peary, also of the United States, the honor of having led the only expeditions over the top of the world.

Only eight men have seen the North Pole. Four were Eskimos with Admiral Peary; one was Matt Henson, Admiral Peary's negro follower, and another was Chief Petty Officer Floyd Bennett, Commander Byrd's mechanic.

Radio and cable brought back to The New York Times and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch news the Byrd expedition had made in fifteen hours and thirty minutes yesterday a trip that took Admiral Peary eight months by ship and dog sled. The objective was achieved thirty-three days after the expedition had sailed from New York for King's Bay, Spitzbergen. Peary was out of contact with civilization 429 days.

The news brought congratulations from President Coolidge, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, and Secretary of War Davis, and from fellow explorers, Capt. Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, whose Italian-built dirigible, the Norge, is at King's Bay to attempt the same flight, were among the first to congratulate the United States explorers.

Commander Byrd sent a Mothers' Day message of success to his mother, Mrs. E. B. Byrd Sr., at Richmond.

Commander Byrd completed the flight over the Pole six days earlier than he had planned. He had expected to look for a landing in Peary Land and establish a base, but decided at the last minute to risk everything in a non-stop flight. He left King's Bay yesterday at 12.50 a.m. Greenwich time, and sailed until a bubble sextant, an instrument of his own invention, informed him he was over the Pole. He made observations and returned, reaching King's Bay at 4.20 p.m.

His plane was a three-engined Fokker named "Miss Josephine Ford," for the daughter of Edsel Ford, who, with John D. Rockefeller Jr. was a financial backer of the flight.

DANGEROUS WORK

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, veteran explorer, said here he felt sure Commander Byrd's report of the flight would bear out a belief that Arctic flight is much more dangerous than any other kind.

Amundsen failed to reach the Pole by plane last year.

Byrd's feat is regarded by Stefansson as clearing the way for his more ambitious and more important flight to the northwest of Peary Land in search of unknown lands.

SUCCESS A SURPRISE

Copenhagen, May 10—The Copenhagen newspapers to-day feature Lieut.-Commander Byrd's North Pole flight, the success of which surprised everybody, including Arctic and aviation experts.

"Has he been there?" is the headline in several newspapers, but most authorities agree it is reasonable to believe he achieved the exploit. Among these authorities is D. Lacour, chief of the Copenhagen Meteorological Institute.

IF FEDOR DIES FAMILY WILL BE ALLOWED IN

Fate of Russian Immigrants Here Hangs on Boy Facing Death in Hospital

Since the Bolsheviks drove them from the family farm near Harbin, Fedor Fedoroviteh, bright fourteen-year-old boy, with his two sisters, one brother and father and mother, have been looking forward to their fresh start in life on a Canadian farm near Calgary.

As Fedor, the father, and his wife were known as industrious agriculturists and through hard work had brought their family up in respectable circumstances, one of the C.P.R. agents in the Far East, who heard about their case, signed them up to come to Canada under the C.P.R. land settlement scheme. They boarded th Alabama Maru and on April 28, father and mother Fedorovitch and the four young Fedorovitches stepped ashore at Victoria eager to make the most of their fortune in this new country.

BOY IN HOSPITAL

To-day, however, Fedor Jr., is in St. Joseph's Hospital, and the other members of the family are out on bond, on which they may be recalled at any minute and shipped back to their native country. It all depends on Fedor Jr. If he dies, the family will be able to stay in Canada without more trouble and start right away on the Alberta farm that is wiating for them. If he lives, the whole family will be liable to immediate deportation.

CASE BEFORE BOARD

While a special board is sitting on the case and hearing evidence on the Fedorovitch case at the immigration shed at the Outer Wharf, physicians and surgeons at the hospital under Dr. Fowler are working with Fedor, trying to save the young boy life and automatically place on the immigration people the responsibility of deporting the whole family.

It has come about in this way: Fedor was never seriously ill and did not know he was sick until he approached these shores on the Alabama Maru. When he landed here the immigration doctors looked him over and decided that he had phthisis. Exray experts were called in and Fedor was put under the machines.

WILKINS PARTY IS AT POINT BARROW

Three Arctic Explorers Flew From Fairbanks to North Coast of Alaska

New York, May 10—The North American Newspaper Alliance announced to-day that Captain George H. Wilkins had arrived safely at Point Barrow on the north coast of Alaska, after his flight from Fairbanks. He plans to hop off soon in quest of undiscovered lands believed to lie near the centre of the Arctic ice pack.

The flight from Fairbanks to Point Barrow was made by Wilkins and two companions in the monoplane Detroiter, a three-engined, larger aeroplane than the Alaskan, a biplane that was wrecked about a week ago in attempting to take off from Fairbanks.

EXPECT CAMPBELL RIVER WATERPOWER TO BE DEVELOPED

Many Companies Anxious to Acquire Water Rights Now That Reserve is Off

Any Organization Which Will Use Resource Commercially May Apply For Control

Early development of Campbell River Falls for commercial purposes is indicated by the large number of inquiries for water rights there received at the Provincial Lands Department. Since the former reserve on this water-power was removed many well-established concerns have displayed a marked interest in acquiring it for industrial purposes, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, states. The water power is so near to large stands of timber that it is considered an ideal site for a large pulp and paper mill.

As announced in The Times a month ago, the Government cancelled the former water right held at Campbell River by an Island syndicate. This right had been in existence for many years, and had been renewed from time to time. Finally Mr. Pattullo and his colleagues decided that the renewals could not be continued, although strong pressure was brought to bear upon the Government to allow the old agreement to remain.

MUST USE RESOURCE

Now that the reserve has been abolished any organization may apply for a new water right if it proposes to use the natural water resources for actual commercial purposes. There is nothing to prevent the former holding company from securing a new right when it is ready to use it, Mr. Pattullo says. He holds, however, that the Government could not properly prevent the utilization of so valuable a resource by leaving in the hands of a company which was not developing it.

OAK BAY TALKS OF COURT MOVE IN WATER ISSUE

dation that the price for water from March 1, 1926, would be 12.2 per thousand gallons.

"On February 19, 1926, we replied advising that his two communications had been referred to a special committee. We also objected to the tone of his letter and stated in part:

"The matter of the supply of water to Oak Bay by the City of Victoria is governed by the 'Oak Bay Act, 1910,' as amended in 1911. This act declares that Oak Bay shall take water in bulk from the city at a price to be agreed upon, such price to be readjusted every five years. As Oak Bay has not agreed upon any price for the current five years, it appears that it would have been more appropriate to refer to the foresaid rates as rates proposed by the city.

"It follows, therefore, that the Oak Bay Council does not feel itself bound by the terms of your notification, but it is hoped that an agreement may be arrived at with as little delay as possible.

"At a conference held without prejudice between our respective water committees on the 1st ult., it appeared to be necessary to decide which of the said acts applied. Your committee was also informed that according to sound principles of accounting and public utility practice, a proper price chargeable would be less than 6 cents per thousand gallons.

"On the 23rd ult. the Reeve of Oak Bay addressed a letter to the Mayor of Victoria as follows:

"As we have not heard from you for some time regarding the above, we should be glad to know whether you have any suggestions to offer to enable us to reach a settlement.

"If arbitration seems to be inevitable, and as there appears to be a difference of opinion between us as to the relevancy of certain acts, would you assent to our respective solicitors coming together to formulate a friendly reference to a judge to decide whether the 'Oak Bay Act, 1910, Amendment Act, 1911,' or 'The Esquimalt Water Work Company Winding Up Act, 1925,' applies to the question between us. This should be neither an expensive nor a difficult matter to settle, and we suggest this course of action. If this point is cleared up, it may perhaps be possible for us to adjust the question of price amicably.

"As no definite reply has been received from the Mayor regarding our suggestion, we are now directed to request that you will consider this letter at your next meeting and favor us with a definite reply regarding your attitude to the suggested reference to a judge.

"An immediate reply, without any confusion of the question by alternative propositions, will be much appreciated."

MAYOR PROPOSES CUT

In announcing his intention of seeking some form of compromise with Oak Bay, Mayor Pendray said:

"While I am convinced that the figures supplied to me, by the City Comptroller and the Water Commission of 12.2 per thousand gallons is our real cost as allowed by the 1925 enactment covering this point, I also realize that arbitration and litigation are both expensive methods of settling any dispute.

"With a view to saving unnecessary expense I am going to recommend to the water committee that the city make an offer to Oak Bay on the same basis as we have settled with Saanich, plus one cent per thousand gallons, though the cost of delivering water the extra distance is more than the one cent addition.

"This means that Oak Bay would pay 11 cents per thousand gallons up to 15,000,000 per month, with a rebate of 20 per cent on the surplus over that figure to 25,000,000 gallons: 30 per cent rebate on the excess from there is 35,000,000 gallons, and then 33 1-3 per cent discount for all over that figure."

"While the city would be selling water at less than cost, I feel sure than when we take into account the cost of arbitration, though successful for us, we would be further ahead if a settlement is effected out or court," concluded the Mayor.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

Funeral service will be held at the Thomson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock for the late Mrs. Kathleen Strank, who passed away at the family residence, Hampshire Road, Thursday night. Interment will be made in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

TAX PROPOSALS ARE TO BE CARRIED OUT

No General Changes in Auto Duties as Brought Down, Says Robb

Sales Tax to Remain as at Present; no Import Duty on U.S. Magazines

Ottawa, May 10 (Canadian Press)—"There will be no general changes in the automobile tariff as announced," declared Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The proposed new duties of 27½ per cent. under the general tariff on automobiles valued at over $1,200 and of 20 per cent on automobiles under $1,200 in value would remain, he said. Some words would be added, however, to clarify the administration of the proposals. There would be no change as to principle.

Sir Henry Drayton asked if any changes were proposed in the sales or luxury tax or in the rebates on parts.

"There will be no general changes as to parts," said Mr. Robb. "There will be some changes in the language defining parts so as to make the position of the part manufactures absolutely safe."

Mr. Robb added there was to be no change in the sales tax. Representations had been made to him to make changes in the excise tax, but he had not been convinced such changes would be in the public interest.

1920 BUDGET RECALLED

Glancing in the direction of Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance in the last Conservative Government, Mr. Robb said he could assure his honorable friend the changes would certainly not exceed those changes made in the budget of 1920 between the time it was brought down and the time it passed the House.

H. C. Hocken, Conservative, Toronto West Centre, asked the Minister if there would be any duty imposed on magazines coming from the United States.

Mr. Robb replied he had listened to Mr. Hocken's speech of a few days ago with a great deal of interest and although he had made outa good case for his point of view, he (Mr. Robb), was not prepared to say there would be any changes.

CABINET INFLUX ENDS NEW RUMOR OF PENDING POLL

No Government Here To-day But Premier Will Lead Colleagues Home To-morrow

With not a single member of the Government in Victoria, Conservative politicians began to talk again to-day about a probable provincial election this year—a suggestion supported by the fact that the Cabinet is scattered all over the Province at present.

Nothing so exciting, however, is in the wind, and things will get back to normal at the Parliament Buildings to-morrow when Premier Oliver returns with half his colleagues close at his heels. Not only the Premier but Hon. William Sloan, Attorney-General Manson, Hon. W. H. Sutherland and Hon. E. D. Barrow are due at their desks here some time to-morrow.

The Premier is returning from Ottawa, Mr. Sloan is coming down from Nanaimo, Dr. Sutherland and Mr. Manson are finishing a trip to the interior and Mr. Barrow is coming back from one of his periodical trips of inspection to the Sumas reclamation area.

After this general influx into the capital there will be only two Cabinet absentees—Hon. J. D. MacLean, who is in his riding of Yale, and Hon. T. D. Pattullo, who is inspecting irrigation systems all over the interior.

NEW WORK PUTTING MALAHAT IN FINE SHAPE FOR MOTORS

Warning Signs Placed at Bad Curves; Road Surface is Smoothed Out

Work on the Malahat Highway by the Provincial Government during the last two weeks has put the road into a greatly improved condition. With the completion of oiling to Duncan in the near future, Island motorists will enjoy an era of comfortable riding.

At all dangerous curves on the Malahat large warning signs have been placed. These show drivers where they should slow down in case of meeting other cars or rushing unaware upon steep down grades.

While the road from Langford Station to the Shawnigan Lake cut-off road has not been re-oiled this year, all rough places have been fixed and the surface is in excellent condition. The Goldstream hills have been greatly improved, while an entire new surface has been laid from Colwood down to Parson's Bridge to prevent cars skidding.

From the Shawnigan Lake cut-off on the road will be entirely re-oiled. As this part of the road has been similarly treated before, an excellent surface is being built up.

THREE MINISTERS VISIT VANCOUVER

Sutherland, Manson and MacLean Spend Short Time in Terminal City

Vancouver, May 10.—Three Provincial Cabinet Ministers visited Vancouver to-day. Hon. W. H. Sutherland and Hon. A. M. Manson, K.C., are spending the day here on their way back to the capital after a week's tour of the Kootenays. Hon. J. D. MacLean passed through this morning on his way to visit his constituents in Yale.

Dr. Sutherland was interviewed by a delegation of truckmen who are seeking modifications of the new Highway Act regulations limiting the weight and speed of motor trucks according to the type of road they are traversing. They explained delivery trucks had to pass over several classes of road to reach given points.

Modifications have been made to meet conditions in the motorbus business, and Dr. Sutherland asked the deputation to go to Victoria on Wedensday so the matter could be discussed with officials of the Public Works Department.

Dr. Sutherland and Mr. Manson visited Slocan City, Kaslo, Nelson, New Denver, Sandon and other places on their trip. They drove over the new road connecting Kaslo and Nelson, which is within ten days of completion, and promises to be of great value to the country served.

"There is a marked mining boom in Slocan," said Dr. Sutherland. "Practically every property is working and many old properties that have been re-opened are showing splendid results."

FUNERAL WAS HELD

The body of the late Mrs. Emily Honor Hunt was laid to rest Saturday morning in St. Luke's Cemetery, Cedar Hill, from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 10.30 o'clock, proceeding to the late residence, "Woodlands," Cedar Hill, where a short service was held, and later service was held at St. Luke's Church by the Rev. N. Smith. Many friends were present and numerous floral offerings were seen. The hymns, "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Where Light Forever Shineth" were sung. The pallbearers were Messrs. E. A. Gregory-Allen, W. Hunt, T. G. Marcham, W. R. Jones, F. L. Mutrie and W. E. Quayle.

DENIAL MADE STRIKE NEWS SUPPRESSED

Government Says Principal Events of Disturbance in Britain Are Reported

Seaman Killed in Street Fight in Glasgow; Riot in London

London, May 10.—A spokesman for the Government to-day denied any news of the general strike was being withheld, and promised the Government would be the first to announce any serious strike situation that might develop.

The statement was made because of widespread rumors being circulated throughout Great Britain that Government officials were withholding much news and disseminating only that favorable to the Government.

FOOD GUARDED

Armored cars, cavalry and other troops are convoying food throughout the country wherever they are needed and more convoys are available at a moment's notice. The spokesman announced that in Birmingham on Saturday police raided Communist headquarters, seized newspapers and arrested five men and a woman. In Plymouth disturbances necessitated the calling out of the police reserves and mounted police. Five arrests were made. In Middlesbrough looting of small shops was done Saturday night. There were also similar isolated incidents in the London area. In the Battersea district two men were injured quelling a disturbance. A man was arrested for making a seditious speech. In Deptford ten persons were arrested for inciting the crowds to attack the police.

FACTORIES IDLE

In Islington all the workers in the borough electric plant quit without notice. They have been discharged. All factories at Walthamstow are inactive owing to the cutting off of the electric light and power supply. The Newcastle electric power station is running full strength, with the help of volunteers.

All the slaughterhouse men struck at Birkenhead after killing all the cattle on hand. The flour mill workers also were called out.

Only minor disturbances have been reported from South Wales.

At Poole, Cambridge undergradu- augurate passenger and mail service ates have arrived in a yacht to into the continent.

VOLUNTEER WORKERS

Manchester has 10,000 volunteer workers; Liverpool, where the tram services are normal, 10,400 volunteers; Hull, 2,400; Leeds, 2,750; Sheffield, 6,200; York, 2,550.

The number of volunteers, according to the spokesman, generally exceeds the actual requirements of the moment. Those chafing at inaction were asked to be patient, as great reserves would be needed in such a crisis as the nation is going through.

SEAMAN KILLED

Glasgow, May 10—The South Side of this city was the scene of wild disorder Saturday night and after the disturbance had been quelled, Gerald Anderson, a seaman, was found dying in a street with a stab wound in the neck. The affair is believed to have been the result of a gang feud.

For once the stormy east end was quiet, the police system of automobile and motor cycle patrols proving effective.

RIOT IN LONDON

London, May 10—There was rioting Saturday night in the Harrow Road district in Northwest London when police charged a mob of alleged strikers who attempted to interfere with the motor transport service. Eighteen arrests were made by the police.

SUNDAY EVENTS

London, May 10.—The British Government utilized the greater part of Sunday in developing its preparations to combat the general strike, which had been in progress for nearly a week, and which seemed no nearer settlement than the day it began.

Troop movements went along with a vim. Soldiers, all steel helmeted, passed through the city's main thoroughfares at intervals on their way to outlying districts and various vital points where the Government deemed their services might be needed. The early morning Sabbath calm was broken as 158 motor trucks heavily laden with food and convoyed by sixteen armored cars and flanked by cavalry, rumbled from the Victoria Docks to Hyde Park.

Sunday was full of anxiety and hope. There was anxiety for the authorities because the rest day gave labor's second and third lines of defence an opportunity to discuss the situation with their striking comrades. Hope was voiced in the pulpits and at other peaceful sources that some way would be found before another Sabbath came to end the struggle, which already had brought deprivation and suffering to millons.

For so great an upheaval there has been little disturbance or disorder, even at the mass meetings yesterday, there was little evidence that so mighty a battle was being fought. J. H. Thomas, once a member of the MacDonald Cabinet and recognized leader of the Labor men in the present strike, addressing strikers at Hammersmith, spoke earnestly and dispassionately, reiterating that no change in the constitution was involved and declaring that "whatever the end, so far as the nation is concerned, it must be worse than before the strike."

One of the questions still undecided by the union leaders is whether to call out what is known as the second line of defence and if necessary, the final reserve, the third line of defence. Many of the second line workers continue to walk out on their own initiative, but without instructions from the Trades Union Congress. This line includes seamen, electricians, gas and water workers, as well as unionists employed in various essential or municipal services.

While a limited number of electricians in London and other cities went out during the last week, this was done sectionally, the question having been decided by the industrial unions themselves and not in response to any call from headquarters. Textile workers and men and girls employed in the woolen mills, as well as the boot and shoe factories, are also in the second line.

The third line of defence comprises scavengers and general laborers in all the allied trades represented in the Trades Union Congress. If the congress should order both these lines out, more than 2,000,000 workers would cease their tasks, bringing the total number of strikers involved in the movement to approximately 5,000,000.

BOMB EXPLOSION DAMAGES CHURCH

Man Seen Running From San Francisco Catholic Edifice

San Francisco, Cal., May 10 (Associated Press)—St. Peter's and St. Paul's Catholic Church, an imposing edifice in the north section of the city, was slightly damaged early yesterday by explosion of a bomb placed in the main vestibule. No one was injured. The explosion occurred at 3 a.m., and persons living in the vicinity saw a man run down the street immediately after. It is the second time this year that a bomb had been exploded in the church. Last January 30, the building was similarly damaged. The damage today was confined to broken windows and shattered woodwork. A police investigation determined the bomb was composed of four or five sticks of dynamite.

Victoria Pastor Preached Sermons In Terminal City

Vancouver, May 10.—Special services were conducted yesterday in Wesley Church here, the preacher being Rev. A. K. McMinn of the Metropolitan Church, Victoria, pastor-elect of the Kelowna United Church. In the morning he took as his subject, "Motherhood," and in the evening he gave a special talk to the young people.

They were, he said, standing on the threshold of life, and there were four vital things that constituted tests. 1. Whether they knew God. 2. Whether they had found their place in the economy of God in the world of life. 3. A man's ability to get along with others, to live in fellowship. 4. A man's ability to manage himself.

The preacher emphasized the importance of all these four vital points. True religion, he declared, depended on a real knowledge of God. He urged all should do their best in their work, however, humble it might be, to make real friends and govern themselves.

TO THE POLE BY AIR

TO COMMANDER RICHARD E. BYRD, of the air service branch of the United States Navy, belongs the credit for having flown over the North Pole first. It took him just a little more than fifteen hours to cover the 1,440 miles which represent the return journey from his base at Spitzbergen. His only companion was his mechanician.

Commander Byrd knew what happened to Captain Amundsen when he made his attempt to fly to the Pole with two heavier-than-air machines last year. One craft became completely disabled and only through the valiant efforts of the crews of both was it possible to extricate the other machine from its bed of ice. Two men would not have had a chance in the world of rescuing it or of getting back to safety. Unless something approaching a miracle had intervened it would have been their end. But Commander Byrd took a chance and demonstrated courage which entitles him to a prominent place in the roll which sets forth other daring achievements in the realm of polar research.

Whether it will be possible for an aeroplane to make a landing within the mystic circle and escape punishment from the uncertain ice is still to be proved. Captain Amundsen proposes to see what may be done with a dirigible, knowing, however, something of the tremendous odds he faces in more ways than one. Nevertheless, this much has been shown: a heavier-than-air machine now exists whose mechanical perfection has been proved equal to conditions almost unknown to the airman.

How much will be added to aeronautical research, or even to the book of polar knowledge, by Commander Byrd's fine exploit is immaterial for the moment. The world will congratulate the first man to fly to the North Pole.

HARMFUL EXAGGERATION

CERTAIN PROMINENT PEOPLE IN Britain continue to call the general strike now in progress "an attempted revolution." Even the Earl of Balfour, who is not easily stampeded, insists that this is what is taking place. Not satisfied with saying that much, however, he proceeds with a speculation as to what would happen if the "revolution" were to succeed and says that in such an event "the community would henceforth be ruled, not by Parliament, not by the parliamentary Labor Party, not by the rank and file of the trades unions, not by the moderate members of the Trades Union Council, but by a relatively small body of extremists who regard the trades unions, not as the machinery for collective bargaining within our industrial system, but as a political instrument by which the industrial system itself may be utterly destroyed."

This sounds more like the Cecils of the days of the Tudors than the calm and sagacious scion of that house who has won so much distinction under the name of Arthur J. Balfour in our own generation. At this range it is hard to see how it helps either party to the controversy or the country itself to change the name of the dispute from a general strike, which it is, to "an attempted revolution." The issue is plain enough, and every form of exaggeration, whether on one side or the other, will make settlement more difficult and produce conditions while it continues out of which serious events might easily grow. To suggest that the majority of the people of Great Britain would be so helpless as to remain meek and mild spectators while "a relatively small body of extremists" sets itself up in the business of government on the Moscow pattern, does not do justice to a populace which has long since passed the stage of blind obedience to minorities.

An incident recorded during the week-end is worth noting for its relation to the suggestion that "an attempted revolution" is under way. Moscow sent the Trades Union Congress two million roubles to assist its cause. But the money was promptly returned. No doubt Labor will be charged with refusing the money because it would have been extremely impolitic for it to have accepted it. This is quite true; but the game of politics, even in times of national stress, is played by all parties and will be played until the crack of doom. But it is to be noted that the "relatively small body of extremists," of whom the Earl of Balfour speaks, was not allowed to have the least influence on the prompt action of the men who are, after all, keeping a tight hold on the strike reins. We doubt if one-quarter of the general public take any stock in the revolution talk, and to suggest that they are something like lambs about to be led to the slaughter—as if they were illiterate moujiks—is a reflection on their intelligence.

AERIAL PATROLS

EVERYBODY FAMILIAR WITH THE fishery situation on this coast must hope that the Ottawa Government will reconsider its decision to abandon the aerial patrol which has been maintained from the Jericho station for some time in a very effective manner. The patrol is indispensable to the proper protection of our fisheries, and it would be the height of folly to discontinue it. There would be no real economy in such a course, because it would be necessary to spend so much more on other protective services which would not be able to do the work nearly as well.

Among those who have protested against the abandonment of this service is the provincial Government, which, of course, is directly interested in the adequate protection of our fisheries. It is on sound ground in making its protest. But we suggest that it also has an aerial patrol question on its hands; one in relation to forest protection. Valuable as our fishery wealth is, it is not as valuable as our forest wealth. The timber industry contributes more than twice as much in terms of money to the production of the Province as our fisheries. The loss to the one from fire is much greater than the loss to the other from poaching. If it is important for the Dominion Government to maintain an aerial patrol for the protection of the fisheries, it must be much more important for the provincial Government to maintain a similar patrol for the protection of our forests.

A USEFUL MAP

FURTHER EVIDENCE OF THE MANNER in which the Automobile Club of Southern California is co-operating with the Automobile Club of British Columbia is seen in an attractive key to the road systems of this Province which the American organization has just published and distributed in large numbers. Outstanding features of the map are points of interest in British Columbia which should appeal to the average motorist. Victoria shares with Vancouver in this respect and, through the general utility of the publication—which, incidentally, contains possibly the most recently printed map of the roads of the southern section of the Province—the holiday movement on wheels to this Island should be considerably increased. Nor has the practical been omitted from the publication. In company with pictures of pleasant scenes and invitations to sports areas is a pictorial reminder of the grim battle which goes on every Summer between the forests and the flames—a warning to motorists to be careful with fire in or near timbered tracts. Altogether, the Automobile Club of Southern California has added a valuable piece of information to the holiday literature of the Northwest and, in the words of the president of the B.C. organization, it "will bring thousands of tourists to this Province."

NEWSPAPERS MAY REAPPEAR FIRST

HINTS HAVE PERSISTED IN GREAT Britain over the week-end that the first break in the great strike will be made by the men who work in the mechanical departments of the newspapers. They are getting restless because so many provincial journals are coming out in their regular dress and very much as usual.

There is nothing very surprising about this. Only a few of the printers' and allied trades' unions in London have recovered from the long and bitter strike which began in most of the large commercial houses in February, 1911, and resulted in numerous "open shops" and a loss of many thousands of pounds of union funds. Much of the failure of that strike was due to the refusal of all the provincial unions to have anything to do with it. This left their members free to achieve their ambition and get into the larger houses in London, which many of them did, and swelled the number of non-unionists who reached the metropolis in hundreds every day.

It is highly probable, therefore, that newspaper production will not be crippled very much longer, save, of course, by such curtailment as will be necessary by reason of a skeleton transportation service. This would not be a bad thing for the strikers or for either Government or country. It would restore fuller comment on conditions and limit the effusions of panic-mongers.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

AWAKENING OF ATHOLSTAN

From The Toronto Globe

An editorial in The Montreal Star of April 20 deals with "the reckless granting of water powers without restrictions to protect consumers" as practiced in the Province of Quebec and contrasts it with the wise and prudent policy followed by Ontario of preserving these natural sources of wealth for the benefit of the people.

Nor is the significance of the article so much in its recognition of the advantage which marks the principle of public ownership as that this recognition should be given by one who hitherto has been notorious as the invincible opponent of that principle. The people of Ontario are fully alive to the great and manifold advantages they enjoy from its operation—advantages of cheap power for their industries and of cheap light distributed throughout all the homes of the community. They need no one to convince them of the benefits they so fully realize by the operation of their factories and the illumination of their houses. But that such a Goliath of the Philistine forces of the private corporate interests as Lord Atholstan should have been converted to a doctrine to which he has opposed the labor and activity of a lifetime is almost in the nature of a miracle.

"Acting on the principle," The Montreal Star tells us, "that the water powers of our rivers are a heritage to the people, designed by nature for the welfare of the whole—a heritage inalienable, without flagrant injustice—the Ontario Government took measures to secure the benefits of all power development to the whole people, with the result that every hamlet, every village, every town and city in Ontario is being brought in as beneficiaries of the product of the people's water powers. In this way endeavors are being made, with marked success, to give cheap power and light to the whole of Ontario."

It will be admitted that in this clear and considered statement of the merits of the policy adopted by Ontario Lord Atholstan has shown his discernment of the advantages of public ownership.

EMPIRE SERVICE LEAGUE

To the Editor:—In fairness to the G.W.V.A. and other existing returned men's organizations who have joined the Empire Service League I wish to correct an error in the letter signed by A. D. Crease and myself. The Canadian Legion Post should not have been described as Victoria Post No. 1 of the British Empire Service League. By resolution passed last week at the Provincial convention it was laid down that where there are more than one post in a city the name of the city is not to be used as a designation.

Returned men who do not belong to any organization are again reminded of a meeting on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at 1406 Douglas Street. In the mean time it is hoped that unattached men will join up without delay with any post of the Empire Service League in order that the league may have 1,000 men enroled by the time Lord Byng arrives here.

DOG DAYS AND DOG BITES

Perhaps it is not possible to find out just how the term "dog days" originated, although it is generally believed that the name was given in ancient times on account of the rising of the Dog Star (Sirius) with the sun at this time of year.

Many people may think that dog days are so called because they are only fit for a dog to live in. There seems to be, however, a somewhat common belief that dog days are in some way connected with mad dogs. This arises from the former superstition that dogs might go mad, that is, have rabies or hydrophobia from no other cause than weather conditions. This superstition was long ago exploded by that great Frenchman, Louis Pasteur, who showed that rabies never developed in dogs unless they had been bitten by other animals infected with that disease. Pasteur also discovered a means af "vaccinating" animals and human beings against rabies. This method of vaccination has since come to be known as the "Pasteur Treatment."

We now know that there is absolutely no relation between dog days and hydrophobia or rabies. The weather may be hot enough to crack the bulb of the thermometer and the humidity may be high enough to wilt a celluloid collar, yet no dog will ever get rabies unless he has been bitten by another dog or animal that has the disease. Apparently most animals contract rabies if bitten by another rabid animal. But the close association of the dog with mankind, his freedom to roam at large, and the fact that when he has the disease he will often run long distances, snapping at any person or animals that come in his path, makes the dog the chief agent in spreading rabies.

Another popular belief is that a mad dog is always afraid of water and some persons go so far as to think that a dog bite is not dangerous if the dog shows no fear of water. Such a belief would be ludicrous, were its results not so frequently tragic, for observers have often noted that mad dogs, in the course of their wanderings will even swim streams, and veterinarians recognize that it is unusual, rather than otherwise, for them to manifest any fear of water. Another popular assumption is that a mad dog must always froth at the mouth and run widly about. While this belief is better justified than the idea as to the fear of water, it cannot be applied to all cases. Sometimes dogs have a form of the disease known as "dumb rabies," where the affected animal manifests none of these common symptoms, yet if a child is bitten by a dog while attempting to pet it, he may get the disease and die.

All dog bites, then, whether in dog days or at any other time, should be regarded seriously. They should receive the attention of a physician. The dog should be immediately locked up and if he shows any unusual symptoms a veterinarian should examine him. He should be kept closely confined for ten days. If he has rabies he will die or show unmistakable signs of the disease before the expiration of that time.

Canadian Questions and Answers

WESTERN CANADA BEFORE THE EIGHTIES

Q. What was Western Canada before the eighties?

A. Western Canada before the eighties was not divided into provinces, but formed the Northwest Territories. There were no railways, no large cities like Winnipeg, Calgary or Vancouver. Canada ended at the head of the Great Lakes. The Rocky Mountains formed an almost impassible barrier. Little or no wheat was grown in the West, and the Hudson's Bay Company was the chief factor in the control of the plains. Their rights were sold to Canada for $1,500,000 as a preliminary to the Dominion exercising sovereign rights over this great empire area.

DR. WILLIAM SAUNDERS

Q. Who is Dr. William Saunders?

A. Dr. William Saunders is the distinguished cerealist for long years connected with the Canadian Department of Agriculture and the first director of its experimental farms. His two great contributions are the discovery of Marquis wheat, which has added millions to the wealth of Canada and the Siberian Pea Tree, which flourishes on the prairies. He did much else to develop all kinds of grains and tree fruits by the application of science to agriculture. He recently received a too long deferred pension from the Government.

Ex-Alderman David Leeming and Alderman Cuthbert Holmes will favor the city manager plan. As the debate is an informal one no decision will be rendered, and no prizes given. The Victoria West Brotherhood has extended an open invitation to all citizens who wish to hear arguments on the subject at issue.

"NOT A RED CENT"

Newly smelted copper is bright red in color, and the expression "not a red cent," a very common one in this country, means that a person hasn't a single cent in his possession. Since the copper coins in circulation are not red, but of a non-descript brownish color caused by becoming dirty, it is believed that the expression has another inference, but this is not the case.

N. COWICHAN REEVE EIGHTY YEARS OLD

John N. Evans Receives Congratulations on Birthday

John N. Evans, Reeve of North Cowichan, yesterday received congratulations from his many friends on his eightieth birthday. Hale and hearty in spite of his years, Mr. Evans is as active in municipal affairs to-day as he has been during the many years he has served as reeve or councillor. The reeve is well known on Vancouver Island for the keen interest and foresight he has shown in matters concerning the welfare of the Island, and particularly of the district in which he made his home many years ago. Many of the schemes which he has fathered during his long service for the community have been responsible for much of the progress of the district.

RIFLE SHOOTING

Eighty marksmen attended the Saturday shoot of the Victoria and District Military Rifle Association held at Heal's range. The shooting showed a big improvement over the previous week, although the wind and light were not the best, especially at the longer ranges.

Bdr. B. E. Badger of the 5th Regiment turned in the best score. His 97 won the "A" class spoon in his regiment, despite the fact that he was handicapped four points.

Capt. W. E. Tapley was the "A" class spoon winner in the 16th Canadian Scottish with a score of 95.

For the 112th Cadet Battalion, Victoria High School, the spoon winner was Cadet Cpl. P. Wilkinson with fine score of 93. Wilkinson is improving every week.

Gnr. W. Quayle, 5th Regiment, and Lance-Corpl. F. N. Cabeldu of the 16th Canadian Scottish, were the "B" class spoon winners in their units.

Owing to the visit of the Governor-General, Lord Byng, there will be no practice next Saturday, but, if a sufficient number are interested, there may be a shoot on Sunday. Those interested are asked to get in touch with Sergt. D. Fyvie as early as possible.

Scores of the various units were as under:

Indian War Canoes to Race at Gorge During Four-day Holiday Period

A steeplechase at the Willows grounds will be one of the big features of the Gymkhana to be held on May 24, in connection with the four-day Maytime festival.

Put Vitamines In Tea

Always serve a lemon with your tea, quartered or sliced.

Lemon brings out the full flavor of the tea—adds tang and zest.

It furnishes fresh vitamines also; and organic salts and acids which are digestive aids.

Tea, therefore, is a more healthful drink when lemon is included.

All famous chefs serve lemons always with tea. It's a stylish custom that is based on dietetic value.

Ask for California lemons, juicy, tart and practically seedless. Best for slicing.

Keep a dozen handy for all kinds of uses.

SOCIAL PERSONAL WOMEN'S AFFAIRS AND CLUB NEWS

MRS. MACLACHLAN IS APPOINTED W.I. SUPERINTENDENT

Provincial Government Promotes Institute Secretary to Important Post

Mrs. V. S. MacLachlan, who has held the office of secretary of Women's Institutes for British Columbia since 1919, has been promoted to the position of superintendent, according to an announcement made by Hon. E. D. Barrow this morning. Mrs. MacLachlan will succeed Dr. Warnock, who has held the position of superintendent in conjunction with that of Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

By this appointment, British Columbia will follow the practice in the other provinces, where the office of Superintendent of Women's Institutes is distinct from the other offices of the department.

HAS DONE SPLENDID WORK

The promotion of Mrs. MacLachlan will be received with interest by institute members throughout the Province. It comes as a natural corollary to the splendid work which she has accomplished in the course of her institute career, and this official recognition of her ability is also a gratifying mark of approval of the movement of which she has been so ardent and enthusiastic an apostle.

It was in January, 1918, that Mrs. MacLachlan was appointed to the Department of Agriculture in the work of the Women's Institutes. This was followed in July, 1919, by her appointment as secretary to the W.I. In this capacity she had given excellent service, and has represented British Columbia at the Federated W. I. meeting in Edmonton in 1921, where she was elected national convener of the Public Health and Child Welfare Committee, and at Fredericton in 1923.

RURAL UPBRINGING

By ancestry and upbringing, as well as by inclination, Mrs. MacLachlan is particularly well fitted to superintend this movement of rural women. Her ancestors since 1632 have been country folk, pioneering in the American colonies and later in Nova Scotia. The first apple orchard set out in Nova Scotia by British-born pioneers was that set out by her great-grandfather in King's County. Her father was a pioneer in the cranberry-growing industry of King's County, where Mrs. MacLachlan was born and raised.

For nineteen years Mrs. MacLachlan has been a resident of Saanich, where she has exercised her rural proclivities by growing fruit and raising goats. All her sympathies are with rural women, and she has made rural problems her special duty.

ORGANIZING ABILITY

Her organizing ability has expressed itself in many ways, particularly in the organization of the district nursing service in Saanich, where she was largely instrumental in the establishment of the Saanich War Memorial Centre. She has also been of great assistance to the Department of Health and public health nursing service in B.C.

Mrs. MacLachlan also fostered and organized the courses of instruction given in the Women's Institutes under the heading of civic and citizenship which has proved one of the most successful series ever arranged. Many features of the institute programmes represent the product of her fertile brain.

Jones Chapter, I.O.D.E., has been postponed from Tuesday, May 11, until Tuesday, May 18, when Mrs. Hebden Gillespie will read the report of the Provincial annual meeting held at Vancouver last month. YOUR BABY and MINE
by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

ANSWERS CAN'T BE TIMED

Mrs. J. A.:

It is impossible for me to publish answers in any particular issue of a paper. I have nothing to do with that. It is impossible to determine pregnancy by the tests you mention. It is very likely that your illness is of other origin.

Mrs. E. J. D.:

Please send a self-addressed and stamped envelope to this department and I shall be very glad to send you a leaflet on proper feeding for your baby. She is indeed very much underweight and as you feel that she is getting a lot to eat, it is more than probable that the food is not the right kind; is eaten at irregular intervals, or is lacking in some elements essential to better development and the taking on or weight.

SOME ELEMENTARY KNOWLEDGE

Mrs. D. L. writes:

"How long should a baby be allowed to nurse?

If a baby belches while nursing is this an indication that one should stop nursing him?

How can one tell if a baby has rickets?

What is the cause of rickets?

How much water should a baby two months old drink daily?

How much should a baby gain each week?

Will a boy gain more than a girl?

Answers: Nurse from 10 to 15 minutes in all.

A baby should belche frequently during nursing. Stop for a moment and then continue nursing until the baby is satisfied, which should be in the above length of time.

Rickets seldom are noticeable until a child is of an age to sit or stand, then his inability to do this, coupled with a poor weight and other evidences of poor nutrition, make one suspect rickets. Rickets is a disease characterized by a lack of calcium in the bones, said bones being so soft that pressure causes them to bend out of shape, bringing about such deformities as bow legs, pigeon-breast, knock-knees, square head, etc.

It is caused by a lack of sunlight and incorrect feeding, though breast-fed babies are subject to it, because of the improper diet of the mothers. Dark skinned races get it more easily than light skinned ones, negro babies being very prone to it. It is cured by a better diet, cod liver oil and sunlight. Most doctors give babies a few drops of cod liver oil daily from about three months of age on.

One or two ounces of water daily.

From four to six, or seven ounces weekly is the average amount of gain. A baby gaining less than four ounces is underfed; over-weight is overfed.

Boys weigh more at birth than girls, usually, and gain slightly more.

WOMEN LINE UP IN EFFORT TO LESSEN STRIKE SUFFERING

Commandant Mary Allen Organizes Huge Army of Workers

London, May 10.—The women of Great Britain, society dames and shop girls alike, are swinging into line vigorously in efforts to alleviate the suffering and discomfort caused by the general strike.

There was no early Saturday closing at the headquarters of the women's auxiliary service, which is headed by Commandant Mary Allen, wwho was decorated for her war services. So incessant was the stream of volunteer workers for first aid and Red Cross work, that recruiting was halted this afternoon until Monday to give the staff opportunity to catch up with all the applicants that have enrolled already.

Commandant Allen went by aeroplane to Birmingham Saturday in response to an appeal to organize women there for public services along the same lines as is being done in London. It is probable that the auxiliary service will be extended to other English centres if the strike continues.

Two private aeroplanes have been placed at the disposal of Commandant Allen to facilitate her transportation to the industrial centres. One of the planes is piloted by the noted English woman flier, Mrs. Elliot Lynn.

Offers of automobiels have come in such numbers that Commandant Allen has been obliged to organize a special telephone department for which Viscountess Rhondda, Great Britain's foremost business woman, who is a director of coal mines in South Wales and of other enterprises, has turned over her premises on Victoria Street.

A number of women doctors also have offered their services for Red Cross and first aid work.

Lady Plunkett and Lady Lettice Lygon, who is a noted society beauty, are the latest additions to the force of women who are helping the newspapers by selling the present slim issues by motor cycle.

"General" Flora Drummond of the Women's Guild of the Empire, who is working in her home area in Glasgow, reported Saturday that there was bitter feeling among the Clyde women against the strike, which they complained had been called without a general vote.

FORMER VICTORIA GIRL PRETTY BRIDE

Miss Winnifred Bell Married in Vancouver Saturday Evening

A wedding of much interest to the many local friends of the bride, who spent her girlhood in this city, took place in Vancouver on Saturday evening, when Miss Winnifred Rae Bell, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bell, became the bride of Harold Richard Baxter. With white lilacs, snowballs and greenery as a background, pink and mauve rhododendrons gave a touch of color which was again carried out in the festoons of pale mauve wisteria over the choir loft and altar.

MRS. HORACE DODGE WED SATURDAY

Millionaire's Widow Marries Divorced Husband of Marjorie Rambeau

Detroit, Mich., May 10.—The wedding of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge Sr., widow of one of the founders of Dodge Brothers Incorporated, to Hugh Dillman, son of a Columbus, Ohio, tailor and divorced husband of Marjorie Rambeau, the actress, took place Saturday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Forrer, pastor of the Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church, in a bower of blossoms sent by Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson, widow of John F. Dodge, whose marriage to a Detroit lumberman took place last year.

Guards stood at the great iron gates of the Horace E. Dodge Jr. estate, where the marriage took place, and only a few close friends and relatives were admitted.

There has never been made public an exact estimate of the Horace Dodge wealth, but the two brothers shared alike in all their joint ventures, and were sole owners of Dodge Brothers Incorporated, which was sold last year for $146,000,000 cash. In addition to his share in the motor car company, Horace E. Dodge had extensive realty and personal property, the value of which is understood to have increased greatly since his death.

Although Mrs. Dodge's age was given on the marriage license as forty-nine, she appeared much younger in her wedding gown—an imported model of beige lace over a foundation of the same shade and with just a touch of coral trimming.

Mr. Dillman, who is forty-three years old, is the son of James McGaughey, who until his death five years ago, was proprietor of a Columbus tailor shop. Several years ago Mr. Dillman appeared in a Detroit stock company and later appeared in New York and on the road with theatrical companies.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillman left for a limousine tour eastward. They plan to go abroad, possibly to Venice, where they first met three years ago.

EVERY TIME A BOY GOES TO JAIL ONE CITIZEN PASSES OUT

Rev. A. Sovereign of Vancouver Tells Gyros of Need of More Playgrounds

Direct Spare Energy of Boy and He Will Not go Wrong, He Says

"Playgrounds are cheaper to equip and maintain than penitentiaries and asylums," declared Rev. A. Sovereign, member of the Vancouver Gyro Club, in concluding his inspiring address before the local Gyro Club to-day. Rev. Mr. Sovereign spoke on the subject of "Playgrounds" and stressed the need of proper supervision.

"Play time is not waste time," said Rev. Mr. Sovereign. "It is the child who does not play whose time is wasted. We have played too long with play or, more truthfully, have practically neglected it altogether. We have thought of it too lightly, too superficially, not realizing that unless we get more play into our work and more work into our play, we will fall far below the ideal of a happy and efficient nation. Education through play is the easiest and most natural way to education, and I mean by education the traning of the whole child, body, mind and character, and sending the child out into the nation to be an intelligent, happy and serving citizen.

PEOPLE HAVE ALWAYS PLAYED

"Play has everywhere survived the march of the centuries and therefore, it is only logical to conclude that there must be something very deep and purposeful in play. Yet it is very hard to explain why children play. Some explain it by saying that it is simply the using up of surplus energy. Play is the safety valve of growth. Another explains it as the instinct which is placed in the child to prepare him for his life work. The little girl plays with the doll to prepare her for the care of her own wee child; the Indian boy throws at a mark to prepare him to kill the animal which will provide him with food. The boy does not play because he is young, but he is young in order that he may play and thus prepare for life."

"Necessary at playgrounds," stressed the speaker, "supervision by qualified directors is absolutely. It is folly to build a playground and then turn it over to the children without a supervisor. Playground apparatus is play-proof as far as danger is concerned, but it is not 'hoodlum-proof.' Such 'hoodlums' do exist, unfortunately, in every city (probably because they have never had such play facilities to teach them the privileges and responsibilities in the game of life), and thoughtful taxpayers feel that the supervision of these grounds is necessary to protest the investment.

NEED THE EXPERT

"The very fundamental purpose of playgrounds is lost if there is no supervisor. Unselfishness, co-operation, team play, respect for an opponent, the sense of honor, humility in victory and a happy spirit in defeat—these, and a score of other characteristics, can only be engendered by the supervision of a play expert. If there is no supervisor, then the playground 'bully' takes charge, and with objectionable language and a tyrant's power he changes play into anarchy, and the last state will be worse than the first.

"The weaker, under-sized and shy children, who need the play the most physically and mentally, never have a chance in unsupervised grounds, but need to be brought out and given a place under the guidance of a careful director.

"Above all, remember that formation is easier, saner and less costly than reformation. The greatest millstone about the neck of our nation is the invalid in the hospital, the criminal in jail and prison, the boy in the industrial school, the insane in our asylums, and the selfish, non-co-operating citizen. Why not try to prevent this wastage? We spend millions on our jails and penitentiaries. Criminals are a costly luxury to the state. But the playground stands out as a powerful and far-reaching influence in the formation of a useful, law-abiding citizen."

HONOR ON PLAYGROUNDS

"That very precious thing known as honor is found chiefly on the playground. I would covet for Canada as a Canadian something of that fine spirit of honor found so frequently on the playgrounds and therefore in the marketplace of the Old Land. We must learn to win without boasting and to lose in a good spirit, willing to lose 100 games rather than win one by a mean or deceitful trick. We must learn to play the game for the sake of the game and not only for the winning of the game. These unique characteristics are gained on the English playing ground largely through the influence of the playmasters, who are also their schoolmasters. It is well known that the boy who cheats in a game and is allowed to continue to do so, will, as a man, carry on his business in the same way.

"Supervised playgrounds have always decreased juvenile crime, and in many places made it an unknown thing, for juvenile crime only represents energy expended in the wrong way. Direct it and you conserve it and you save the boy, for every time a boy goes to prison, a citizen dies."

The Governor-General then proceeded to plant a sturdy little maple tree in the grounds, amid the cheers of the assembled crowds, and to the accompaniment of clicking movie cameras. Her Excellency was presented by Mrs. Wace with a lovely bouquet composed of the wild flowers of the district.

After a brief tour of the site, during which Dr. Wace explained the proposed plan and the objects of the solarium, Their Excellencies were entertained at tea, served by the ladies of the district under the direction of Mrs. Wace.

Both the Governor-General and Lady Byng exhibited the keenest interest and enthusiasm in the solarium and commended the people of Vancouver Island for their initiative in thus setting a high example for other communities in Canada to follow.

GOVERNMENT PLANS

Once there are ten patients at the Queen Alexandra Solarium ready to enroll as students under a competent teacher, the British Columbia Government will supply the necessary instruction, according to a statement given out by S. J. Willis, Superintendent of Education. The Department of Education will pay the salary of a teacher for the solarium, and A. C. Stewart, inspector for the district embracing Mill Bay, will be the trustee of the school.

In this way the child patients at the solarium will not lack instruction.

It is confidently expected by the building committee that the institution will be ready to open some time in July of this year.

Already Dr. H. E. Young, Provincial Medical Health Officer, has sent out questionnaires in order to gather information regarding the number of children requiring cures in B.C. It is expected there will be sufficient patients to fill the solarium almost immediately. It will have a capacity of thirty-two patients in the beginning, but it is expected that this will be added to from time to time until the institution will be one of the largest of its kind in existence.

IF FEDOR DIES FAMILY WILL BE ALLOWED IN

The plates showed that he was dying of tuberculosis. All the other members of the family passed the medical tests, but the trouble for them lay in the fact that the immigration law says that where one member of a family is turned down and refused admittance to Canada for physical or health reasons, all the other members of the family must be at once deported with him.

So the family here waits either the final death call of Fedor at hospital, which means their admission as Canadians, or word from the doctors that he will recover at least temporarily, which mean that they will all have to return across the Pacific.

Meanwhile Samuel J. Reid, controller of immigration, is trying to find a way out that will save the ambitious family for Canada, if at all possible. But he is faced with the unalterable orders of the Immigration Act. The immigration board sat Saturday and is sitting again today behind closed doors on the Fedorovitch case.

General Merkulof, one of the Russion generals who commanded before the revolution and who now lives here, has interested himself in the case and has made the proposal that the family be given a temporary permit to stay in Canada until Fedor dies or gets well.

NO BREAK AS BRITISH GENERAL STRIKE IS CARRIED ON INTO SECOND WEEK

Food transportation in Manchester is improving with the help of volunteers, but no development occurred with a strike of 1,000 men in five flour mills there.

POTTERIES WORK

Some of the big potteries in North Staffordshire are working. The mines and iron works, however, remain silent.

At Carlisle, the train service is getting better, and a loaded express left for London this morning.

The train and tram services in Glasgow also are reported improved, numbers of the strikers returning.

Work in the abbatoirs at Birkenhead is proceeding, despite a strike of slaughterers, and a telegram has been sent to Belfast, reading: "You may ship all the cattle offered."

London, May 10.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill stated in the House of Commons to-day it had become necessary, owing to the shortage of newsprint, to commandeer paper provisionally and employ it for the Government's daily newspaper, The British Gazette.

This embargo would affect The British Worker, the strikers' as well as other papers.

NEWS DISCUSSED

Immediately after the chancellor's announcement came the accusation by the House and Mr. Lloyd George that the Government was suppressing from The British Gazette news of the efforts of the Archbishop of Canterbury and others for peace.

Lady Astor, who is a staunch Conservative, asked whether The London Times was not more impartial in its treatment of the strike news than The British Gazette.

Mr. Churchill replied that The Gazette could not publish everything, and that it was trying to make a fair selection of news. He offered to try to publish the Archbishop of Canterbury's appeal for peace as soon as it was possible. He admitted The Gazette's news was not entirely satisfactory, and remarked it was too bad so many newspapers had been suppressed by the strike.

R. BYRD AND HIS AIDE SEE NORTH POLE FROM AIR

While it is claimed the flight will yield little scientific information, it is everywhere hailed as a great feat.

Of the nine Arctic expeditions organized this year, the Polar expedition of Commander Brd more than any other recalls the heroic and finally successful efforts of Admiral Robert E. Peary.

Byrd at first selected Pearl Land as the base for his flight. Then, too, the commander set sail from New York on April 6, the anniversary date of Peary's discovery of the Pole in 1909.

When Byrd's flight finally was made, however, he abandoned the Peary Land plan and flew straight from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, and back.

AMUNDSEN'S BASE

For their base, Captain Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth chose King's Bay, while Captain George H. Wilkins decided upon Point Barrow, Alaska, neither of which Peary ever used.

BELIEVED IN AIRCRAFT

In connection with all the expeditions, it is known that in his last years Peary believed in aircraft as the best means of navigating the Arctic. While Peary devoted twenty-three years in reaching the Pole, Byrd did it thirty-three days after he had left New York.

Peary Land received its name from the fact that in 1900 Peary went up its previously unexplored coast to the northernmost part of Greenland. At the end of land he named the point Cape Morris K. Jessup.

PEARY'S MISFORTUNE

Peary made this march in 1899, despite the loss of all his toes when his feet were frozen. He had set out on an attempt to reach the Pole, but had been forced to turn back. As a result, however, he obtained information which gave important guidance in other attempts.

Native Sons of B.C. Award Honors

Vancouver, May 10.—Good citizenship honors for this year have been awarded to Major the Rev. C. C. Owen, it has been announced by G. A. Upham, chairman for the selection committee of the Native Sons of British Columbia. The award will be officially presented on Appreciation Day, June 13.

Self-sacrifice and a devotion to duty were the main points given by the chairman when announcing the selection.

Major Owen is an old soldier, having fought in the Riel Rebellion and later coming to this Province. He gave his only son to the cause in the Great War.

SPOKANE FINANCIER VICTIM OF BULLET

R. L. Rutter Wounded by P. Saffron, Pawnbroker; Attack in Street

Spokane, Wash., May 10—R. Lewis Rutter, president of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, was shot twice and seriously wounded by Phineas Saffron, a pawnbroker, on Riverside Avenue, a principal business street of this city, at the noon hour to-day. Physicians pronounced his condition as critical.

At the police station Saffron informed detectives he had intended also to shoot Connor Mallott, secretary-treasurer of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company, who was walking with Mr. Rutter. He said he was "more anxious to get Rutter," because he was head of the company.

The company recently foreclosed a mortgage on a business block owned by Saffron and he told the officers it had caused him a loss of approximately $75,000. The concern brought suit against him here last month for $7,000 and the case has not been decided.

SAYS STRIKERS ARE PERSONALLY RESPONSIBLE

Union Members Liable For Damage, Sir John Simon Claims

London, May 10 (Association Press)—Sir John Simon, former Home Secretary, has created a great senation by his speech in Parliament declaring that unions which joined the general strike in violation of their various trade agreements have committed an illegal act, and that this made every member of such unions personally responsible to his last pound for the damage done by the strike.

In an official statement, issued tonight, the council of the trades union congress said:

"We are bound to repudiate afresh the allegation that the trades union congress is engaged in an attack on the community. It appears to us that strenuous attempts are being made to turn the public mind into a channel that we are engaged in a fight against the constitution, and that this is purely a political struggle camouflaged in an industrial dispute.

"We are not fighting the public, nor are we attempting to overthrow constitutional government. The trades unions have exercised a legal and long established right of withholding their labor. This is not only a legal, but a moral right, and has been done to protect a section, namely, the miners, against degradation of their standard of life."

FOOD SUPPLIES FOR BRITAIN REDUCED

Dublin, May 10.—On instructions from British Labor and the Irish trade unions no shipments of foodstuffs or agricultural products were made from Dublin to-day.

Cross-channel traffic is at a standstill and large numbers of dockworkers are idle. The prices of cattle and foodstuffs in the Free State are falling in consequence of the embargo. All Irish internal services are running normally.

The mail which arrived at Kingstown from England last Friday has not yet been unloaded, trade unionists refusing to handle it because they assert the mail was previously handled by blacklegs.

The situation in Ireland is complicated by the forthcoming cuts in the wages of railway workers. The railways announced this morning the cuts would become operative beginning June 11.

Geneva, May 10.—The commission which is to study plans for reorganization of the Council of the League of Nations organize here to-day. Dr. Guiseppe Motta, former President of Switzerland, was chosen chairman.

"Saves Me Many Dollars"

"Our family likes rich cream-and-butter flavor in milk dishes. But with ordinary milk my budget cannot stand the amount of expensive butter I have to buy. Now I use Carnation Milk."

In soups, baked dishes, creamed vegetables, sauces, cakes, Carnation gives real cream-and-butter flavor. No need to use expensive cream because Carnation has full, rich cream consistency and flavor.

Why let CARBON Continually put your Car in the Repair Shop?

CARBON is the most annoying—and at the same time the most destructive element with which you must contend in the operation of your motor car.

It costs you money in frequent repair bills and in rapid deterioration of your motor and causes you annoyance by the knocking, missing, weakened condition it brings to your otherwise good engine.

The amount of carbon deposit—and carbon trouble—which you have, is determined by the motor oil you use; because carbon is produced when the oil burns in your cylinders.

To avoid carbon troubles use the motor oil that successfully combats carbon—Marvelube—refined from a matchless grade of Peruvian Crude Oil—a crude oil that is remarkably free from carbon. The Marvelube Process, by which it is made, is a new and revolutionary step forward in lubricating oil refining science, developed after four years of research. It reduces carbon to the merest trace in the finished oil.

No other motor oil can match Marvelube in this almost carbonless quality, because Imperial Oil Limited controls Peruvian crude oil, while the Marvelube Process is the sole property of Imperial Oil Limited.

Use Marvelube Motor Oil. Save money on repair bills. Keep your car on the road—smooth and powerful in its everyday performance.

Marvelube is made in six grades—including Marvelube "F" for Ford cars. It is sold at Imperial Oil stations and by good dealers everywhere. The standard retail price of Marvelube from bulk is 40c. per quart.

DISSOLUTION SOUGHT OF MILL INJUNCTION

Receiver of Tyee Plant Not Duly Appointed, Defendants Claim

Action of Debenture Holders Not Warranted, Says Counsel

A legal battle for control of the Tyee Lumber Company, Tyee Siding, opened in Supreme Court Chambers before Mr. Justice Morrison this morning. Claiming that Harry Walter Arthur had gone into possession as receiver for the debenture holders irregularly, C. F. Davie made application for a motion to dissolve an injunction preventing Charles Ernest Hastings, Bertha W. Hastings and Ethel W. Hastings from operating the sawmill.

W. C. Moresby opposed the application. His first objection that the application was not made in accordance with the forms of the court was overruled.

Mr. Moresby also gave notice he wished to examine the dependants on affadavits. He disputed he said that the defendants were officials of the company as claimed.

No material showing grounds for an injunction against Charles Ernest Hastings, managing director, Bertha W. and Ethel W. Hastings, shareholders and employees of the company had been presented, Mr. Davie said.

The receiver was not properly appointed Mr. Davie claimed. He was receiver, but not by appointment of the court. He was a shareholder but did not show he was When he went to the mill as receiver Mr. Hastings ordered him off the premises. He then got an injunction as a receiver, but there was no evidence that he was a receiver beyond the fact that he said so himself. He claimed he received his appointment on behalf of the debenture holders but the debenture holders had not that power.

In answer to his lordship Mr. Moresby mentioned that the injunction was obtained through D. E. Hastings, financial agent original organizer of the private company, but not of the Tyee Lumber Company.

His Lordship: Mr. Hastings ordered the receiver off the premises. An injunction was made on that. I would have made an injunction.

Mr. Davie: If you had known they were officials of the company you would have demanded they be given notice.

His Lordship expressed the opinion that it was not a matter for an application on an injunction now. It was a matter for trial. The interrum injunction was on an ex parte application to give protection to the debenture holders.

Mr. Davie claimed there was no fault warranting the appointment of a receiver. It was a serious matter for his clients he said. The debenture holders were not responsible for any damage. The receiver was responsible.

The defendants should not have taken the law in their own hands by ordering the receiver off the premises. They should have evoked the court. They should have sought an injunction to prevent him taking over as receiver. Arthur then would have had to go to court to show he was duly appointed as receiver.

On the material before the court when the injunction was granted, His Lordship said he would have granted the injunction and on that the motion to dissolve the injunction was refused. His Lordship agreed, however, to a renewal of the application with new material giving Mr. Moresby leave to cross-examine on affadavits.

TENDERS CALLED ON FIRST UNIT OF NEW P.G.E. PROGRAMME

Sutherland Asks Bids on Trestle Replacement Near Lillooet Station

Heavy Expenditures Required Over Period of Years to Keep Line in Shape

Tenders for the first unit in a programme which will keep the Pacific Great Eastern Railway in first class physical condition for the next few years are being called now by Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Railways.

The work covered in the contract which Dr. Sutherland proposes to award shortly is a large gravel fill at Lillooet, where a trestle will be replaced by a permanent new grade. As the present bridge work requires renewal the railway management decided to do away with it altogether and substitute a grade, with which a bridge would be unnecessary. Thus expensive renewal costs will be avoided.

Every season from now on some replacement work of this sort will be done so as to spread the large total cost over a period of years. Many trestles will require replacement shortly and the total bill for improvements will run into many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Coroner's Jury Decides Death Was Accidental

Two Loggers Were Killed At Cathels & Sorenson Camp By Falling Tree

The coroner's jury at McCall's Funeral Home, brought in a verdict of accidental death this morning after considering the circumstances which led up to and accounted for the death of Leonard Hamilton, Chilliwack, B.C., and Alex. Oberg, a Swede, who were killed early last week in the Cathels and Sorenson logging camp at Port Renfrew.

The bodies of the two men arrived here Sunday aboard the steamer Princess Maquinna. Witnesses of the tragedy told the story of the death of the two men at the inquest this morning. The jury had no hesitation in bringing in its verdict.

An inquiry is being instituted by the Provincial Police, under whose charge the inquest was held, as to the identity of A. Oberg. It is known he was a Swede, but whether or not he has relatives here has yet to be ascertained.

Duty on Butter is Subject of Question

Ottawa, May 10 (Canadian Press)—J. L. Stansell, Conservative, Norfolk-Elgin, Ontario, asked in the House of Commons this afternoon if there was truth in the press reports that owing to importation of butter and fruit from Australia, the Government had been required to apply a dumping duty of six cents per pound on butter.

Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, replied no order had been issued from the department, but a departmental order was not necessary as a local collector could have the dumping duty applied. The minister promised to inquire and reply by Tuesday.

CALL WITNESSES TO GET EVIDENCE ON DEFENCE SIDE

Frank Higgins, K.C., Obtains Surther Remand in Green Perjury Case

After bringing forward additional evidence which he believes is important in the presentation of his case, Frank Higgins, K.C., hearing continues in the city police court, was granted a further remand this morning. Despite the objection of C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, His Honor granted a remand to the defendant for the purpose of hearing two or three witnesses who are being brought here from outside points.

Gladys E. Mason, who was a stenographer in the offices of John R. Green and did work in connection with the Cobble Hill Logging Company, will be one of the witnesses the defence will bring here. She is at present residing in Los Angeles. She has married since leaving Victoria. Mr. Higgins said she was prepared to leave the southern city on Thursday.

At the same time James W. Corning, formerly manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in this city, has been communicated with and is now making preparations to come to Victoria. He is residing at Fernie, B.C. Both these witnesses, according to Mr. Higgins, are material persons to have before the court.

Mr. Higgins this morning argued that evidence on which the prosecution based its whole proceedings was unsound. He produced the transcript of the stenographic notes as taken down by Miss Unwin, court reporter at the County Court case wherein Mr. Green is alleged to have uttered a perjury. Harry Langley, another court reporter, testified this morning that he had examined Miss Unwin's reports and had found errors, omissions and words in the transcript for which there were no equivalents in the shorthand notes. The notes furthermore were not legible. It left a certain doubt in the mind as to what was meant by the notes, witness said.

Mr. Harrison suggested that all shorthand reporters had methods of their own and could best read their own writing. Witness admitted this was so, but pointed to certain glaring faults, in his opinion, in Miss Unwin's work.

The prosecution relied on evidence given by Mr. Green in certain proceedings in the County Court, said Mr. Higgins. This evidence was found to be faulty, and the notes could not be relied upon to support the charge, he asserted.

GREEN NOT DIRECTOR

William Halliday, called by Mr. Higgins, was the next witness to take the stand. He stated that he had known Mr. Green since 1919, and that he had been his solicitor. Referring to the Cobble Hill Logging Company, witness said he understood Dougan, Hall, Copley and Mitchell were shareholders in the company, besides himself. Mr. Green had never been a shareholder or a director, in his estimation, he said.

Witness was asked whether or not he had found certain important documents where he had thought he had left them at his home in this city.

HOME WAS ROBBED

"No, I found my house had been entered," said witness. "And many of my private papers were stolen." The house had been left empty for a period of about eight months' time, witness explained.

A bundle of cheques were produced by Mr. Higgins bearing the signature of the defendant Green. Witness was asked to look at the cheques and identify Mr. Green's signature.

Witness said he himself had made out the cheques, stamped them and sent them to Mr. Green to sign.

Witness alleged he had stamped the words "Pr. director" on the cheques. Sometimes, he said, he had omitted to do this. Always Mr. Green had signed the cheques, however. If the "pr. director" was not on the cheques it was his own fault, witness admitted.

Mr. Harrison subjected witness to severe cross-questioning after Mr. Higgins concluded. He objected to the granting of the remand for which the defence asked, but His Honor granted the postponement until May 18. Mr. Higgins assured the court that he would be prepared to go on at that date and that he was anxious to finish the whole proceedings.

Luxton

Special to The Times

"Princess" Winnie (Wales) was present at the dance held in the Luxton Hall last Friday evening and was introduced to the assembly by her manager. She was accorded a very hearty welcome by the crowd, which numbered well over 100 people.

The dance to be held on Wednesday, May 12, will take the form of a masquerade and fancy dress. Prizes will be given for the best costumes and cards will be provided for those who do not care to dance. Pitt's orchestra will be in attendance.

There was an excellent attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute, held in the Luxton Hall on their regular meeting day. Final arrangements were made for a dance to be held in the hall under the auspices of the institute on May 21 and a concert on May 29. It was also decided to hold a Summer flower show on July 6, the arrangements to be left in the hands of the directors.

A per capita fee of 60c will be sent to the secretary of the Islands District Women's Institute Conference, the appointment of a delegate was left over until the next meeting. Two dollars was voted towards prizes at the potato fair.

A vote of sympathy was passed by the members to Mrs. V. S. MacLachlan, secretary of institutes, in her recent bereavement.

It was decided that efforts should be made to induce the hall committee to dig and crib a well for the hall.

The institute will meet half the expense if this is done and Mrs. R. Brown, president of the institute, will donate a pump. The secretary was instructed to write to the road superintendent requesting that the road in front of the hall be graded and put in better shape.

After a pleasant talk on "Travels" by Miss H. Kelly, P.H.N., afternoon tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. R. Brown and Mrs. Helmsley, and the meeting adjourned.

FAMOUS OPERETTA IS MODERNIZED ON SCREEN

Corinne Griffith Portrays 1926 Model of Parisian Maid in Latest First National Picture, "Mlle. Modiste," Featured at the Capitol Theatre.

The modernizing influence of the movies touches even the operetta in Corinne Griffith's latest First National picture, "Mlle. Modiste," now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

This film version of the famous Victor Herbert musical piece shows Fifi, whom old-timers remember as a vivacious Parisian mannequin, saleswoman and songstress, into quite a modern Parisian-American maid.

Her styles are not those of the late nineties but up to the minute. In fact, according to E. M. Asher, general manager for the Corinne Griffith Productions, which made the picture, all the costumes shown in the picture were especially designed for it.

The story of "Mlle. Modiste" as Miss Griffith has filmed it deals with the romance and business success of an irresistible French girl who combined the two rare faculties—a good business mind and a romantic soul. The threads of the story are wound around the girl's business success after Hiram Bent, a wealthy St. Louis hatter, falling a victim to her sales ability, buys the establishment which employs her, makes her the proprietor of it and proceeds to exploit her as a mysterious "Mlle. Modiste," queen of Parisian fashions, while an impatient, jealous sweetheart, Etienne de Beauvray, army officer and society leader, finds difficulty in solving the mystery of Bent's interest.

Norman Kerry is seen opposite Miss Griffith, while Willard Louis essays the character of the mercenary Hiram Bent, slave to Fifi only as an investment. Rose Dione, Dorothy Cumming, Paulette Duval, Mario Carillo and Tony Merlo head the supporting cast, which numbers among its members a score of beautiful and shapely models who participate in a fashion revue and costume pageant.

Robert Z. Leonard directed "Mlle. Modiste." Adelaide Heilbron is responsible for the adaptation of the operetta to the screen.

In addition to the feature attraction the Capitol concert orchestra will play the special musical score to Mlle. Modiste, every afternoon and evening. The stage presentation for this week introduces Miss Theo Pennington and supporting artists in a superb miniature concert de luxe.

"Beautiful City" Is Thrilling Drama At the Playhouse

Richard Barthelmess Scores Big Success in His Latest Picture

Richard Barthelmess, probably the most popular of all male screen stars, scores another big succes in his latest production, "The Beautiful City," a First National picture showing all week at the Playhouse.

But it has become a habit with this star to score big successes. All of his productions remain in the memory, chiefly because of his acting, but also because of their general excellence otherwise.

In "The Beautiful City" Barthelmess gives another of his sterling performances—this time as a young Italian youth in the ghetto district of New York, a difficult role for any actor. Tony, the young flower vendor, whose place of business is a pushcart along the curb, tries to make an honest living, despite the evil associates of his brothers with whom he comes into contact, and who try to inveigle him into their illegal schemes.

But Tony, in love with an Irish maiden living in the same tenement, had his mind on a flower shop of his own some day—and marriage with Mollie. But against his will he is drawn into the vortex of intrigue. Then comes black despair. The "beautiful city" which he loved with all his heart had been the means of embittering his life. By strength of his own manhood, and Mollie's faith and assistance, he manages to "come out on top."

It is thrilling drama, alive with the fire of conflict, and holds the attention of the spectator in a vise-like grip throughout.

Dorothy Gish, that vivacious and talented actress is cast in the role of Mollie and her performance is worthy of a whole column of praise. Other capable players in this production are William Powell, Florence Auer and Frank Puglia.

Popular Comedy On Coliseum Bill All This Week

Cast of Fourteen to Present "Here Comes the Bride," Starting To-day

"Here Comes the Bride" is the title of this week's bill at the Coliseum. There is a happy sound about the title, of joyous wedding bells, of music and flower-strewn paths. But it is not really like this at all, for there are two brides—young and charming as brides should be—besides "the bride." But she is different.

It's all a merry tangle, with some intriguing Spaniards who set the plot rolling. Two love affairs run through the story, neither of which have anything to do with the story of the bride herself—except to make matters more difficult. "The Bride" has a dowry of $100,000 which should make her quite the "catch of the season" for a penniless young lawyer, who has just been evicted from his office. But there's a catch in it as well and Frederick Tile, the hero, soon wishes he had not been in quite such a hurry to be willing to go through with the ceremony. Perhaps he would not have been if he had noticed that Ethel Sinclair, in breaking her engagement to him, in her father's presence, had laid a special emphasis upon one word when she said she was "acting" for the best.

There are fourteen people in this production, the largest cast yet used at the Coliseum during the present season of Ed Redmond's directorship.

Buster Keaton Is Gloom Chaser In Film "Go West"

Comedy King is Lumberjack, Freight Hopper and Cowboy in Columbia Show

One of the screen's comedy kings follows Horace Greeley's advice in his latest picture, which begins its local engagement at the Columbia Theatre to-day.

Buster Keaton is the gloom-chaser who heeds the words of the famous editor, and his current photoplay, "Go West," has been widely heralded as the year's outstanding laugh riot. The picture is by far the biggest in the history of the frozen-faced comedian's career. Half a year was required to make "Go West."

Thousands of half-wild steers and scores of real Arizona cowboys take part in the feature. The Keaton company spent more than a month on a 1,500,000-acre ranch to film some of the scenes. Several special trains were chartered during the story's picturization.

"Go West" portrays the ludicrous and thrilling adventures of a youth without a personality. He travels around the country in a boxcar, but nobody will give him a job. He is chased off a southern plantation, given the air in a Canadian lumber camp and invariably rebuked at every turn of the road.

Finally his wanderings carry him to the great open spaces, where fate catapults him into a cowboy's chaps and spurs. As a ranch hand Buster is a scream. The story develops naturally, but with amazingly funny results.

The star is supported by a big cast, including Howard Truesdale, Kathleen Myers and Ray Thompson.

"Go West" was produced by Joseph M. Schenck for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release. Buster was the director and wrote the story.

Two moving pictures "A Trip on the C.N.R." and a comedy will also be included in the programme.

The recent demonstrations at the South Park School attracted considerable attention and another large gathering of people is anticipated at the George Jay School.

The concert will be given in auditorium on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock.

People who turn their toes outward in walking take from eighteen to twenty per cent more steps than if they walked straight.

Skinner's Dress Suit" Offers Denny As Mirth Creator

Photoplay Version of Henry Irving Dodge Best Seller is Rollicking Dominion Farce

At last, a plausible farce, a farce that is fast, funny and furious, yet convincing and possible. We refer to the latest Universal-Jewel, "Skinner's Dress Suit," which is being shown at the Dominion Theatre.

The picture is a photoplay version of the famous book that was one of the season's best sellers, and is still one of the most popular of the works of Henry Irving Dodge.

It is a story of the mishaps and adventures of a young married couple, the Skinners, and of their awful rise in the social and business world. Skinner is an underpaid clerk. "Honey," his wife, sees in her handsome husband a paragon of commercial acumen and forces him to ask his boss for a raise in salary.

Unfortunately, the time selected by Skinner to brace his employer for the increase is a most unhappy one as that particular moment was chosen by one of the firm's best customers to announce that he would not renew his next year's contract. And poor Skinner is denied his request.

Arriving home, he hasn't the heart to tell "Honey," and he makes her believe that he has gotten a ten dollar increase. Overjoyed, she plans to spend the money in advance from their tiny store of savings.

The first thing he must buy is a dress suit, in order to keep up with the social life of the town. That is where the real plot of the story begins. The acquisition of the suit, its resultant complications and the frantic efforts of the hapless Skinner to dodge his creditors, who arrive at the most inopportune moment combine to make the perfect comedy.

Crowded houses rocked at the efforts of poor Skinner to justify his wife's belief in his greatness. Reginald Denny, as the star, gave a wonderful performance, in one of the best pictures he has ever done.

Laura LaPlante, as "Honey," his wife, perfect in this role, which is different from anything she has yet done. Hedda Hopper and Arthur Lake as well as E. J. Ratcliffe and Ben Hendricks, Jr., give eminently satisfying performances. The rest of the cast is ideally suited to their various roles. It includes Lionel Braham, Betty Mossissey, Henry A. Barrow, William A. Strauss, Lisle Leslie, Broderick O'Farrell and Lucille Ward.

Dramatic School, will read Tennyson's poem, "The Lady of Shalott" prior to the singing of the same by the choir, in cantata form, and Mrs. A. W. Stokes will take the soprano solos in same. PARENTS MURDER BOY AND END OWN LIVES TO ESCAPE CHARGES

Oskaloosa, Iowa, May 10—Determined to escape legal difficulties on charges of operating a "diploma mill," James W. McLennan and his wife to-day killed their six-year-old son and themselves. They were found dead in a gas filled room. MacLennan, who posed as the president of "Oskaloosa College," was arrested Thursday after an investigation by a Des Moines newspaper of his fake institution.

Relatives and letters left by MacLennan and his wife, said they agreed to end the lives of the family as a means of escaping punishment, and to avoid hiring attorneys as he did not have sufficient funds to defend himself in court.

Canadian Play On Royal Stage Week of May 17

"So This is Canada," Set in British Columbia, is Attractive Show

It will be good news to the theatregoers of this city to hear that the Royal management have been able to secure "So This Is Canada," which has just finished an eight weeks' engagement in Vancouver. "So This Is Canada" is set entirely in British Columbia and was written by W. S. Atkinson, of Vernon. As stated, it was produced for the first time in Vancouver, and will very shortly be produced in London and New York. Many patrons will remember "So This Is London" and what a wonderful comedy it was. "So This Is Canada" has compared more than favorably in comparison with this play. The three principal characters are an Irishman, an Englishman and a Scotsman. Of course, these three are the subject of a million stories. The entire cast is excellent and will no doubt become very popular during their visit here. Popular prices will prevail at all performances, so that no one will be kept away on this account.

"So This Is Canada" will be the attraction at the Royal for one week commencing Monday, May 17. Matinee Wednesday and Saturday.

SENIOR GRADE STUDENTS GIVE EXCELLENT RECITAL

It was senior grade evening at the Columbia School of Music on Friday last, when several students in this grade gave a very interesting programme of high merit. This was the eighth monthly recital by this institution during the Winter. In the pianoforte division those taking part were Hilda Elliott, Olive Heale, Kathleen Muir, Dorothy Osborn, Ronald Heard, R. Kissinger and Isabella Mildenhall, L.A.B. Outstanding among these were Miss Mildenhall in Rachmaninoff's "Ralichinell;" Olive Heale in Bach's "Fugue in D Minor," and Ronald Heard in the "Hungarian Dance," in G Minor, by Brahms. Two duets for two pianos were also included.

The vocal department was represented by Marjorie Watson, who can now be numbered among the foremost young sopranos of the city. She gave a capital rendering of Beaseley's "Some One Came Knocking," and Dorothy Hartree and Miss E. Macfarlane, M.A. gave "O Garden of Peace" (Bayman), and "Indian Love Call" (Lagon) respectively. This was Miss Macfarlane's first appearance during the season. She possesses a very pleasant mezzo-soprano voice, and evinced much promise. Mary Philp, in (a) "Cradle Song" (Cochrane), and (b) "Humoreske" (Dvorak), Beatrice Graham, in "Minuet and Gavotte" (Veracine), and Tom Denny in the "Serenade Champetre" (Roisdeffre), represented the violin department with distinct credit. The Misses Graham and Philip rendered the duet, "Barcarole" (Pache), in such manner that elicited much applause. Mrs. Burdon-Murphy, the principal, played the accompaniments to the vocal and violin numbers.

Veterans Protest Nanaimo's Win In Province Cup Final

Miners Played Appleby, Who Is on Suspended List; Replay is Expected

Vets Showed Great Form in Second Half of Saturday's Game

Although Nanaimo City received the Province Cup, emblematic of the football championship of British Columbia, as a result of their victory over the Victoria Veterans in Vancouver on Saturday, there is a strong possibility that the game will have to be replayed.

The Veterans filed a protest after the game with the British Columbia Football Association on the grounds that Appleby, who was used at outside left by Nanaimo, is under suspension by the B.C.F.A. The protest will likely be considered at a meeting of the B.C.F.A. on Saturday next.

The Veterans are hopeful that their protest will be upheld as they are confident that they can defeat Nanaimo in another game. The Veterans gave a great display last Saturday, despite the fact that Meredith, one of their backs, did not make the trip, necessitating the remodelling of the team, and a serious injury to Cameron, star inside right. Cameron was crocked in the first half and while off the field Nanaimo scored a goal.

It is interesting to note that Nanaimo City reached the finals after two protests over their games with Cumberland and then turned around and played a suspended player against Victoria.

Vancouver, May 10—Nanaimo defeated Victoria Veterans in The Province Cup final on Saturday afternoon by a score of 3-2 at Con Jones Park before a large crowd, but there is a possibility that the result may be protested by the losers on account of the fact that Appleby, who was playing outside left for the Coal City eleven, is under suspension by the B.C.F.A.

The first half was all in favor of Nanaimo, and had it not been for a wonderful display by Bridges in the Victoria goal, the score at the interval would have been a heavy one. The keeper brought off some marvelous saves when all seemed lost, and he well merited the ovation he received at half-time from the crowd. Such pressure as Nanaimo exerted was bound to produce a score, but it was not until after twenty-five minutes that the first goal arrived, Stobbart applying the finishing touch to a swinging centre by Knight. Two minutes later Appleby dashed in to a high ball from McFarlane and turned it into the net, and at half-time the Upper Islanders were leading by 2-0.

VETERANS COME BACK

Victoria were a transformed team in the second half, and merited a draw for their great comeback. The crowd gave them every encouragement, and inside five minutes McCormick had scored their first goal from a penalty kick given against Edmonds for hands. Clarke, however, added Nanaimo's third tally from a suspiciously offside position after another five minutes, but McCormick shot another fine goal midway through the half from a free kick near the half-way line. Routledge got his hands to the ball, but could only push it against the underside of the bar from whence it went into the net.

Victoria tried desperately hard for the equalizer after this, but were denied further success.

Victoria Veterans—Bridges, Campbell, Preston, McCormick, Bowman, Smith, Phillips, Cameron, Mirfield, Thornett, Clarkson.

Nanaimo — Routledge, Perry, Edmonds, Knight, McFarlane, Kenny, Wilson, Thompson, Clarke, Stobbart, Appleby.

Referee, D. Craig; linesmen, Darron and Bowler.

Miss Sayward Again Wins Golf Title of Colwood Tournment

Miss Margaret Sayward once again holds the ladies' championship of the Colwood Golf Club. In the finals on Saturday she defeated Mrs. Walter Parry by 2 up and 1 to play. The match was well played and ended on the seventeenth green.

Mrs. Jack Stevens won the honors in the first flight by defeating Mrs. R. L. Pocock by 3 and 2.

Mrs. J. H. Richardson disposed of Mrs. Crowe by 3 and 2 in the final of the second flight.

BALL GAME TO-NIGHT

The Cameron Lumber Company's Tigers and the Rock Bay team will play a game of baseball at Central Park this evening at 6.30 o'clock.

ART CHRISTOPHER EQUALS RECORD AT MACAULAY COURSE

Arthur Christopher, who last week won the championship of Macaulay Point Golf Club, on Saturday shot a new amateur record for the course and tied the present record held by Fred Burns, professional of the club, with a fine round of 33. But for three putts on the last green he would have set a mark that would have taken some beating.

A three on the 390-yard third and another three on the long 450-yard sixth helped the card considerably. The full card was 4 2 3 4 4 3 5 4 4—33.

Percy Edmunds Wins Uplands Golf Title In Very Keen Match

John Savident Beaten by 2 and 1 in 36-Hole Finals at Uplands Course

Players Kept Close Together All Way; Large Gallery Enjoys Spirited Contest

Percy Edmunds was crowned king of the Uplands Golf Club yesterday afternoon, when, by his steady play, he vanquished the mighty John Savident by two up and one to play.

The match aroused much interest and in the afternoon a gallery of 200 enthusiasts watched the play. This is the largest gallery that has followed a final at the Uplands course.

The match was keenly-contested and not once did either player enjoy an advantage of more than two holes on the other. At the end of the morning round Edmunds was one up, but he had required one more stroke than Savident to make the round. Edmunds had a card of 81, while Savident shot an 80.

LAID TWO STYMIES

The afternoon round started disastrously for Savident, who failed to get his ball away cleanly from the first tee. He found the rough about 150 yards away and lost the hole to Edmunds. Savident, however, came back strongly and, by laying Edmunds two stymies, won back two holes and at the 26th was one up. Edmunds, however, took the next hole, when Savident drove into the bushes and at the turn the match was all square.

Edmunds took the lead at the 28th and halved the next. Edmunds became two up when he won the 30th, but Savident cut the lead to one up when he won the 31st. Both played the 32nd badly but Edmunds won it. The next three holes were halved and, when Savident failed to win on the 35th green, he lost his last chance to prolong the match and congratulated Edmunds on his victory.

President S. J. Halls presented the prizes to the winners following the match.

Washington Jumps Into Lead In Race In American League

New York Yankees Slip Into Second Place; Western Teams Make Strong Bid

Chicago Coming up; Ty Cobb Hits Two Homers, Making 112 During Career

New York, May 10—Western Clubs threaten to usurp the peak positions in the major leagues as the fifth week of the major league season starts.

The first inter-sectional games for the year disclose eastern teams facing strong competition.

Brooklyn's 3-1 victory over the Cardinals yesterday enabled the Robins to take the first skirmish from a western team. A double by Felix, in the ninth, brought in the winning runs and the series, three games to one.

However, the Cubs romped away with three of four engagements by beating of Giants yesterday 8-7 and have a chance to unseat the Robins from the lead in the series which opens to-day. Chicago trails by one and a half games.

After losing three straight games to the Reds, the Phillies finished by taking the last game of the series, 4-1.

Ty Cobb was the big noise in Detroit's batting carnival with the Yankees, whacking out four hits in as many times at bat, including a brace of home runs, which gave him four for the season.

The Yankees lost 14-10 and went into second place, as the Senators took the measure of the White Sox, 6-5, and went into the lead of the league.

Thistles Show Fine Form and Win Easily Over Esquimalt Team

A big surprise was sprung in local soccer circles on Saturday afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park, when the Saanich Thistles, junior champions of the season, won hands down from the Esquimalt senior crew by a score of 4 goals to 1. Fresh from their victory they won the Brown Cup, the Thistles gave the fans and the Esquimalt aggregation something to think about. The younger lads played rings around their opponents at certain stages of the latter half.

In the opening session, the dockers had a slight edge on the play, and the first tally of the game came from the head of Tom Watt.

Irving evened the count ten minutes later, and the score remained so until the interval.

The youngsters showed up splendidly after the interval, scoring three more goals. Minnis, Connorton and Irving contributed to the final slaughter of the docking crew.

Ralph Alcock refereed, and the teams were:

"What prayers do you say, Effie?" asked the governess.

"Only one," replied Effie, "'God bless all the good people and give the bad ones a chance.'"

"And who taught you that?"

"I made it up myself," said the little girl confidently.

Medico (thoughtfully): "Yes, you ought to walk to the office every day."

His Patient: "You think that will restore me to health?"

"It will if you don't get run over."

Bowlers Send Balls Down Too Skilfully For Cricket Batsmen

Low Scores Made by All But One Team in Senior Matches Played Saturday

One Match Decided by One Run, While Another Ends With Six-point Margin

Bowlers held the whip hand in most of the cricket matches on Saturday and scores were kept low, half of the teams failing to reach the century before all their wickets were down.

The results were as follows:

Cowichan Wanderers 92, Victoria Harlequins 91.

Victoria 125, Cowichan 119.

Incogs 148 for three wickets, Five C's 73.

Albions 122, To C's 57.

The Incogs had the easiest victory of the day. They smashed the Five C's bowling all over the field, and Bob Wenman beat the half century mark, while Sparks went to 44 before being caught out. The Five C's could not do a thing at the wicket owing to the effectiveness of Bob Wenman with the ball. Wenman took seven wickets for 28 runs, the best average of the day.

ONE RUN BETWEEN TEAMS

The Harlequins and Wanderers had the keenest match, one run determining the winners. One good score was made by each side, Leggatt contributing 40 for the Wanderers and Matson 43 for the Harlequins. Matson dropped five wickets for 29 runs, while Freeman took three Harlequins wickets for 14 and Baiss took three more for 19.

Victoria had but six runs to the good on Cowichan Cocks's 42 and May's 36 helped out the Victoria total, while Green's 41 and Dunlop's 39 were the best scores for Cowichan. Robertson of Victoria took five wickets for 34, while Cole toppled six Victoria wickets for 31.

The Two C's made the poorest score of the day with but 57, only two batsmen getting into double figures. The Albions did very well at the bat with Hogarth's 43, not out, the best score. Hogarth was also the leading bowling with five wickets for 12 runs.

B. C. PARTY WILL VISIT EUROPE

By JEANETTE CANN

"When I go up to London!" Can any combination of simple words hold more meaning? For those who are about to visit for the first time that "mighty heart" of our empire—or as the Englishman naturally thinks, "the centre of the world"—what thoughts of joyful and thrilling anticipation do the phrases carry with them! And for those who know and love "dear old London" the associations though of more sober bliss are not less emotional. The wealth of association, though varying greatly, becomes hardly less rich if instead of "London" there be substituted "Paris" or "Oxford" or any one of many of the names of places which will be visited by the League of the Empire party preparing to leave Vancouver next month.

Arrangements are just being completed for a tour of the British Isles and France, the first to be made by an educational party from British Columbia. Miss Grace D. Burris, organizer of the party, and honorary secretary of the Vancouver committee of the League of the Empire, announces that she has had more applications than she can accept for places in the party which she will personally conduct this Summer. About thirty educationists—teachers and students, among whom are six Victorians and three former Victorians, will leave Vancouver by the Canadian National Railway on June 26 and sail from Montreal on the Cunard steamship Aurania, July 2.

The Victorians who have decided to take advantage of the privileges of travel and entertainment offered by this tour are Miss Cathcart, Miss Ayland, Miss Aileen Aylard, Miss Lenore Hyndman, Miss Kathleen Corry and Miss Cann of Victoria College. The party also contains three former Victorians, Mrs. Harding, who is a sister of W. C. Pope, secretary of the Victoria Board of School Trustees and a daughter of the late Dr. Pope, for many years Provincial Superintendent of Education; Miss Marguerite McDougall, at present residing in California, and Miss Lilian Copé, now of Vancouver.

Miss Burris, of King Edward High School, Vancouver, was, some years ago, a member of the staff of the Victoria High School. She has herself enjoyed British hospitality while traveling under the auspices of the League of the Empire in the Old Country, and not long ago spent a year in London, serving during part of that time in the capacity of exchange teacher. Miss Burris is delighted by the success with which her plans for the Summer have been met and feels that the tour, which is in the nature of an experiment as far as British Columbia is concerned, will offer unusual advantages and attractions.

Mrs. Ord-Marshall, C.B.E., the honorary secretary of the League of the Empire, has personally arranged the itinerary for England and France. A letter of recent date announces that she will meet the British Columbians on their arrival at Glasgow, and the warmth of welcome and hospitality which Miss Burris anticipates for her party will be, no doubt, in large measure due to the interest of this distinguished imperialist, who has devoted many years of her life to the promotion of understanding and goodwill between the Mother Country and the Dominions.

The first part of the tour includes a motor and boat trip through the Trossachs, a visit to Edinburgh, coaching through the English Lake Country and visits to Stratford-on-Avon and Oxford. Eleven days will be spent in London, from which city numerous short expeditions will be made.

A unique privilege which the members of the party will enjoy is that of attending the meetings of the British Empire Educational Conference to be held in Paris in July. In response to a gracious invitation from the French Government, the conference meets this year, for the first time, outside the the British Empire. Those who provide the programme will, no doubt, be concerned chiefly with the broader aspects of education and with efforts to strengthen friendly relations between the educational institutions of France and of Britain.

The delegates will be entertained at a garden party given at the British Embassy, on which occasion they will have the pleasure of listening to the British Ambassador give an address on "The Intellectual Genius of France." At an evening function the visitors will be received by M. le Marechal Foch, president of the Bienvenue Francaise; they will be guests at the Grand Opera and at a luncheon to be held at the Palace at Versailles.

The stay in Paris covers ten days, three or four of which will be left entirely free to the travelers for sight-seeing and such entertainment as they may desire.

In organizing this party Miss Burris has received the sympathy and co-operation of S. J. Willis, Superintendent of Education; of the inspectors and other members of the Department of Education, and of J. S. Gordon, municipal inspector of the schools of Vancouver, and G. H. Dean, who holds a similar position in Victoria.

At a recent meeting of the British Columbia Federation of Teachers, on the suggestion of Harry Charlesworth, general secretary, a motion was passed asking all teachers who are members of Miss Burris's party to act as delegates of the federation at the forthcoming Paris conference. University Women's Clubs, the High School teachers of the Lower Mainland and other educational bodies will also be represented.

On August 21 one-half of the party will leave England to return to Canada, the other half will continue their travels, visiting Italy and Switzerland. The Board of School Trustees of Vancouver has shown a sympathetic interest in the project by granting Miss Burris leave of absence in order that she may be able to conduct the second party.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Clover Posey

Copyright, 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily was sitting near the open window in his hollow stump bungalow one afternoon. This, in itself, was rather strange, for nearly every afternoon the old rabbit gentleman was hopping around looking for adventures. But this time he wasn't.

"I promised my wife I would stay home to-day," said Mr. Longears to Mr. Twistytail, the gentleman pig, who walked grunting past and seemed surprised at seeing Uncle Wiggily there. "Aunt Lettie, the lady goat, is coming to afternoon tea, and she is so nervous my wife asked me to stay and help entertain her. That's why I'm not adventuring," explained the rabbit.

"I wish you luck!" grunted the pig as he waddled away to get a sour milk ice cream coda at the Woodlandee Sweetee Shoppee.

Uncle Wiggily was sitting there, wishing he didn't have to stay in to help entertain goat ladies when, all of a sudden, a little voice beneath the window said:

"Here's a Clover posey for you, Unkie Wig!"

Looking down, Mr. Longears saw Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, holding up to him a paw filled with white clover blossoms that she had picked in the fields.

"Oh, thank you, Baby Bunty," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh as he reached out and took the flowers. "You are very kind to me!"

"I'm glad you like 'em," said Bunty. "Unkie Wig," she went on after a moment, "do you know what?"

"Well, what?" laughed the rabbit.

"Some childrens sells clover posies, Unkie Wig," said Bunty. "But I don't sell 'em. I give 'em away to you. But if you had a penny you didn't want you could give it to me."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "Here's your penny, Bunty!" and he handed her one.

"But I didn't ask you for it; did I? she earnestly inquired. "And I didn't sell you the clover posies; did I?"

"Oh, no, indeed!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. So Bunty hopped away to spend her penny and the clover flowers were put in a glass of water on the window sill. Then Aunt Lettie, the goat, came to tea.

The tea table was set near the window where Uncle Wiggily had his chair, and everything was going along nicely. Mrs. Longears had passed Aunt Lettie the cakes, and Uncle Wiggily handed Aunt Lettie the cup of tea, and passed her the cream made from the milkweed plant when, all of a sudden, Mrs. Longears exclaimed:

"Wiggy, you have forgotten something!"

"Dear me!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman blushing red on his pink nose. "Haven't I any napkin?"

"Oh, yes, you have a napkin," said his wife, "but I told you, this morning, to bring some sugar from the store, and you forgot it. Now we have none for the tea!"

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Don't mind about me!" bleated Aunt Lettie. "I can get along without sugar!" But Mrs. Longears could see that Aunt Lettie was going to get very nervous without any sugar in her tea. The rabbit lady was much ashamed because her husband had forgotten to bring the sugar, and Uncle Wiggily himself felt rather stupid about it.

But all of a sudden he saw some bees buzzing around the little bunch of clover posies Baby Bunty had brought. The flowers were on the window sill, and many bees were humming as they gathered honey from the sweet, white petals.

"Here's a clover posey for you, Unkie Wig."

"Oh, kind bees!" cried Uncle Wiggily, "please do me a favor! I forgot to get the sugar for Aunt Lettie's tea. Will you make a little honey from the clover posies, and that will sweeten it? Will you?"

"Of course we'll do that for you!" buzzed the bees. So from the clover bouquet they quickly made a little pot of honey, and Aunt Lettie, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Longears put some in their cups of tea and all was well. The goat lady didn't get nervous any more.

"It was worth more than a penny to have Bunty bring me those clover posies," said the rabbit gentleman when the goat lady had gone home. "It was as good as if I had an adventure." And if the wash rag doesn't tickle the umbrella in the ribs when it tries to brush off the rain drops, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's lemon squeezer.

TARIFF TEST IN U.S. SUPREME COURT

Washington, May 10—For one reason or another, largely political, there has been prolonged delay in forcing a real test of the flexible tariff law in the Supreme Court of the United States. Now, the time seems close at hand when the issue will be forced. The announcement is definitely made that there will be appeals from the decision of the board of general appraisers at New York in a case involving the duty on barium dioxide. It is also announced that it is the intention ultimately to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court. A decision by the Supreme Court would, it is believed, settle the question whether Congress itself must fix the rates of duty on imports or whether the President or other administrative officials can fix or adjust rates.

The board of general appraisers upheld the flexible tariff law. But there is powerful legal authority for holding otherwise and deciding the President cannot change or fix rates of duty. Therefore it will be of great interest to see what the court of customs appeals decides and, after that, the Supreme Court.

Just now, the flexible tariff and the tariff commission are under attack at the hands of a special committee of the Senate. This adds to the interest felt in the test case in the courts. The hearings have brought out that the flexible tariff law is virtually a dead letter and that it is rarely used to lower rates.

While the flexible tariff was formerly opposed by high tariff men in Congress they have changed front and now want to retain it for political reasons. Since the law was enacted, there has been much shifting about and it is not possible to say now what will come of it all.

When Baby Wakes his high chair will be ready

TAKE him out of his chair after lunch, put him to sleep in his crib, and when he wakes he'll see his pretty new chair, all ready, dry and so hard-surfaced he can't scratch it. While he sleeps you'll have time to do all his toys, touch up the scratches on his crib, and paint out all the other marks the young active mischief makes during his walking activities. All your work will be quite dry and hard when he wakes.

It's wonderful. Dries while you look at it, almost. Doesn't raise the old paint or the old varnish underneath, either. It's the new perfected lacquer. It puts a rich lustre over the old finish so that it looks like new. Or you can put on a new color entirely. Just as good for painting fresh new wood. It's the long-awaited, perfected new brushing lacquer that dries while you look at it. Paint your floor in the morning, go upstairs, wash your hands and tidy up and when you come down the newly lacquered floor is dry, hard enough to walk on. And it will wash—clean as a plate.

Try it. Touch up an old chair or the children's toys just to see what it will do. Really, it is wonderful.

MISSING 130 DAYS, MAKES PORT WITH ALL SAFE

Missing at sea for 130 days, the prey of alternate storms and calms, the four-masted schooner Irene finally made its way to San Pedro, Calif., after being given up as lost. The schooner sailed from Grays Harbor, Wash., December 14 for Miami, Fla., with a load of lumber, but was driven far off its course. There were rations for only about one more day when it finally reached the harbor. But the crew's first cry was, "Give us a smoke." Upper picture shows the schooner in San Pedro Harbor; below are Captain and Mrs. Allen E. Rosendal and Irene, the mascot.

LIBERALS NAME S. A. POMEROY AS ESQUIMALT LEADER

The report of the special committee appointed at the last annual meeting to review the constitution was given by Chairman A. T. Weight, which contained recommendations for certain amendments. The report was referred to the resolutions committee, who, after due consideration, recommended that they be presented to the meeting. Articles 3, 12, 13 and 17B were affected and the recommendations adopted by the meeting.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The report of the president was short and to the point and in it Mr. Yates expressed his desire to remain out of office during the next year. The election of officers then took place, Messrs. Weight, Witty and W. L. Griffiths acting as scrutineers of ballots.

The constitution only allowing of one hon. president, the Hon. John Oliver was unanimously elected. This clause has been amended to allow of two hon. presidents in the future.

Nominations for president were received and the names of S. A. Pomeroy and A. E. Wale were put up for ballot. The result was S. A. Pomeroy 22, A. E. Wale 21, one spoilt ballot. Mr. Pomeroy was duly declared elected. Mr. Wale was elected vice-president with a majority of twenty votes over Mr. Milne of Sooke. F. Smedley of Langford was elected secretary-treasurer, Mr. Sedger having been nominated but declining to stand.

A vote of thanks to the retiring officers was ably moved by A. Kahout and responded to by Mr. Yates.

C. H. O'Halloran, president of the Nanaimo Federal Riding Liberal Association, gave a short address, in which he congratulated the association upon their choice of officers, and paid tribute to the work of the retiring president, Mr. Yates.

Mr. O'Halloran touched upon two important points in his address, namely, the export of unmanufactured logs and the budget. With regard to the former, the speaker said that considerable criticism was rife with regard to the policy of the present Government in this matter. It is not safe, he said, to accept all we hear without investigation and went on to show by statistics that less than two per cent. of the timber cut in this Province was exported. The total timber cut in 1925 was 2,000,500,000 ft. Of this authority was given by the Government for the exportation of 46,000,000 ft 150,000,000 ft. was exported from crown granted land over which the Provincial Government has no control. The total export amounted to eight or nine per cent. of the timber cut, of which only two per cent. was authorized by the Provincial Government. Therefore, said the speaker, when you hear that this Government is legislating extravagently, the paper or person making the statement is either badly misinformed or is deliberately making a false statement.

The speaker concluded his remarks by urging all Liberals to stand firm and spread the cause of Liberalism, which means "the greatest good for the greatest number," and a plea for patriotism and pride in our country.

J. Ramsay, of the Saanich Liberal Association, made reference to the general advance in community work and community spirit, but said that more attention should be given by the people to the real work—the work of the Government. There was no greater work, said Mr. Ramsay, before men and women and they should do their best in the interests of their country.

J. S. Yates, who had vacated the chair in favor of the new president, moved a vote of thanks to the speakers, which was seconded and heartily carried.

Birthday Party—A most enjoyable party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith, Arm Street, Saturday afternoon in honor of their daughter, Mary, on her tenth birthday. The rooms were artistically decorated in pink. A delicious supper was served. Mrs. Smith was assisted at the table by the Misses Uni Williams, Louise Patterson, Lillian and Muriel Brown and Esther Smith. The afternoon was spent in games and in the evening a musical programme was given. Those present were the Misses Muriel Chapman, Violet Medley, Eleanor Roe, Helen Hazzart, Clare and Dorothy Coleman, Isobell Sloan, Mary Galvin, Mildred and Patricia Hawke, Irma Miller, Thelma Williams, Alice Strickland, Reiny Hill, Mary Smith, and Masters Harold Baker, Stewart Chapman, Howard Hazzart, Bobby Williams, Gordon Hill, Jackie Worden, Harvey and Jackie Patterson, Len Murrant and others.

May Day Ball—Owing to the inability of the committee to hold the May Day ball on May 1, arrangements have been completed to hold this event on Friday, May 14, in the new Foresters' Hall. The social committee of the Civic Employees' Protective Association is sponsoring the event and Charlie Hunt's augmented orchestra has been engaged to supply the music. Dancing will take place from 9 till 1 o'clock.

MARINE TRANSPORT WORKERS DECLARE NEW WAGE STRIKE

Sympathy is Expressed With Marine Workers Participating in British Strike

New York, May 10.—Officials of the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union, which claims a membership of 25,000 throughout the world, have called a strike of all members effective at midnight last night.

The union demands $15 monthly wage increase, an eight-hour day and extra pay for overtime. Representatives of the union in the principal ports of the United States, Central and South America, were advised of the decision and pickets were sent directly from the meeting to the waterfront.

The British Trade Union Congress was also informed of the strike and the marine union officials expressed sympathy with the British marine workers who are participating in the general strike.

The Marine Transport Workers Industrial Union is affiliated with the Industrial Workers of the World.

U.S. TO WAR ON RUM SMUGGLERS

Prohibition, Coast Guard and Customs Services on Pacific Coast to Enforce Laws

Washington, May 10.—Concentration of the prohibition, coastguard and customs services on the Pacific Coast for a new war on rum smugglers was ordered Saturday by Assistant Secretary Andrews.

Alf Oftedal, in charge of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau at San Francisco, was placed in charge of the co-ordination programme.

A similar scheme has been in effect on the southeastern coast, and if the new plan proves feasible the prohibition chief plans to extend it to the North Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Oftedal, who was in conference here Saturday with Andrews, has been made a communication officer of the Government with Canada and Mexico in matters dealing with the enforcement of the treaties between these nations. Members of his intelligence staff will carry commissions from both Secretary Andrews and Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau. He will maintain headquarters in San Francisco with branch offices in Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle.

General Andrews advised Ned M. Green, prohibition administrator at San Francisco, that while there will be one centralized investigating force on the Pacific Coast, the realignment would in no way relieve "present executives of their responsibility for law enforcement."

Fishermen Still Refuse to Operate On Columbia River

Astoria, Ore., May 10.—With the Columbia River salmon fishing season eight days old, the strike engendered by the Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union has swept the river clear of gill nets from Astoria to points above Kalama. Fish receipts at the canneries have been negligible and packing operations are at a standstill. The packers still stand by their offer of 13 cents a pound for raw fish as opposed to the fishermen's demand for 14 cents a pound.

Tentative Prices Set For Sockeye

New Westminster, May 10.—Tentative prices for sockeye have been set by canners and fishermen for the coming season, which will be laid before their respective associations for ratification. If the agreement is approved, canners will pay 35 cents per fish to fishermen who use cannery gear, and 52½ cents if they use their own tackle. In the event of the owners failing to agree on these prices, fishermen declare they will not cast a net.

The new prices are in advance of 1925, which were 25 and 37½ cents.

Wall Street TO-DAY

Last Minute News on Stocks and Financial Affairs

New York, May 10 (By R. P. Clark & So.)—The tone of to-day's market was heavy selling pressure made an early appearance under which values sagged, influenced by developments affecting special groups of an unfavorable character. Early weakness in the motor division lowered the trend of values due to announcement of a new price revision by Chrysler Co. There is also talk of a cut in the finished article by these companies later. Steel common after the appearance of the unfilled tonnage report was in supply as the figures showed a larger decrease than was generally expected. Late developments marketwise showed recoveries in progress.

A favorable exhibit was the earnings of N. Y. Central and other rails. Recuperative powers of the general list shown in the late dealings and the character of reports affecting the carrier and petroleum shares is conducive to expectations of an improved market in securities representing these groups and from around present levels a good sized rally may assert itself at any time.

New York, May 10 "By B. C. Bond Corporation's direct Wall Street wire)—The Wall Street Journal's stock market edition this afternoon says: For the greater part of the session the market was adversely affected by the trade developments in motors and steels. The first was the price cuts from $50 to $200 by Chrysler and the second the unexpectedly large decrease in U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage, amounting to more than 500,000 tons. These were two or three distinct selling waves which caused reactions of from one to five points or more and the market showed little ability to absorb the selling for anything deserving the name of a rally until the late trading. Then, news from London that one of the larger railroads had announced a number of its men would return to work tomorrow, formed the basis for a snappy rally with short covering forming not a small part of the buying power. As in recent sessions, public interest in the picture was purely nominal.

Trading was rather light and for the greater part of the day the bears had things their own way. Brokerage advices in numerous instances suggested that lower prices were in order. Money renewed at 4 per cent. Steel common sold below 120 in anticipation of a poor unfilled tonnage statement. Expectation was justified for the report showed forward business to have declined 511,000 tons last month, which was considerably more than the Street had looked for. Estimates had been made of a decline of 400,000 tons or less.

Rubber common ruled around the low of 54½. Selling of this issue was credited to traders. The company's own plantations furnish twenty per cent of its raw rubber requirements and it buys the balance in the open market. Officials do not expect any cut in tire prices at this time. Rails were still dull. Oils shaded in price.

Steel's large decline in the corporation's unfilled tonnage started selling in the steel. One especially weak stock was Fisher Body, which declined more than five points. In the automobile accessories department this drop was not illogical, accompanying the drop in motor stock prices. Time money against stock exchange collateral is dull, with rates unchanged from last week. Loans generally effected at 4%. Commercial paper quiet with offerings light. Prime names 4%; good smaller names 4¼ and 4½%.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, May 10 (By R. P. Clark & Co.)—Wheat: Well scattered rains over the American and Canadian northwest, together with moisture in parts of Nebraska and Kansas occasioned some selling firmness in foreign markets. Strength in premiums here and a satisfactory decrease in the visible supply. Prices moved back and forth in irregular fashion with the May delivery showing relative stability. Houses with eastern connections were fairly good buyers and checked the dips, but the flurries were not followed. Strike news was regarded as more favorable. The Government report construed marketwise as slightly bullish in that the estimated yield of 549,000,000 bushels was under the private estimates. Private cables intimated that stocks in Europe are light, and taht a heavy demand will develope as soon as the strike is settled. Stocks of wheat at Fort William have been reduced around 9,000,000 recently and boats en route there are expected to take 20,000,000 bushels. Premiums here were unchanged to 1 cent up. The weather and crop news will likely have sustaining influence in the pit for the time being and advocate a trading position.

Corn:—Acted steady, opening price moved up as shorts covered. Short covering was pronounced. Commercial demand somewhat improved for good grades. Country offerings continue moderate. Stocks of corn in Chiacgo showed a substantial reaction for the week.

Oats: Average slightly lower in a tame session. Trade was again light and fluctuations within a narrow limit.

Chicago, May 10 (By B.C. Bond Corporation's direct pit wire)—Wheat market was unsettled and fluctuated rapidly within a fair range, averaging slightly higher. May acted tight at times and went to around 22½ cents over July early but lost the advance later.

Good rains reported in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska and in parts of the Canadian northwest led to selling but there was a good class of buying on the dips and also short covering so that the breaks did not get very far.

Offerings increased on the bulges. There was no export demand of consequence at the seaboard. Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅛d higher, Buenos Ayres was unchanged to ⅛c higher at midday.

Government report issued Saturday had little effect on the market except for brief period early. There was a noticeable lack of pressure on corn and the price advanced sharply after an early opening on local short covering which found offerings lacking.

Rain over a good part of the belt and colder weather had some effect on sentiment.

Eastern cash demand slow. Oats unsettled with prices holding within relatively narrow limits.

New York, May 10.—Investors do not seem to be alarmed at the social disturbance in England, The New York American says to-day.

Berlin, May 10.—German cabinet ordinance removes practically all restrictions on dealings in exchange.

New York, May 10.—"Opinion is almost unanimously bearish on the motor stocks and may be somewhat accentuated by the announcement of a price reduction on one line by Chrysler," Bills of Houseman-Gwatheway says to-day. "We do not believe there will be any great change in the general market conditions until the trend of conditions in Britain becomes clearer. News dispatches over the week-end added nothing definite to the situation in England except for general statements that the aggressiveness of the Government was beginning to have effect. News of the break in the situation there one way or the other may come suddenly and without warning and any position in our stock market should be held with that possibility in view. In the meantime, we expect about the same kind of a market as prevailed most of last week. We are still bullish on Radio."

YOU CAN BUY A 6-ROOM HOUSE FOR $700 AND PAY FOR IT AS RENT

WE have just taken over a good 6-room house on a mortgage and will sell to the first comer at just enough to clear the mortgagee. This property is located just outside the city limits in Saanich with taxes of only $9.95 a year. The house requires some repairs, but a handy man could in his spare time put the place in good condition at very little expense. This is an opportunity for a workingman with limited means to secure a home of his own on terms as low as $100 cash and the balance at $10 a month and interest. This is worth investigating at

"I told you the other night that I sometimes sang at private parties and receptions. It was at one of those—at a party given by Tom Fogarty—and Sam Church was there.

"He seemed to take an interest in me. At any rate, he said he did. He told me he thought I had a marvelous voice, that with a little more training I could be sure of a great career. He said he'd like to help me, that I could count on him as a friend.

"I asked Mr. Fogarty about him later and he told me that Church had lots of money and was in a position to help me if he really took an interest in me. Later Church came down to the restaurant where I was singing and he invited me to his house—to a party he said he was giving. He said he had a proposition he wanted to explain to me.

"Well, I went. There wasn't any party, of course. If I'd had any sense I'd have known it before I went. And what he wanted to do was to bargain with me. There were a lot of things he could and would do for me, only, of course, there were certain terms to me met."

She laughed rather bitterly, Jimmy thought, and then she went on. "Just the usual sort of story, you know. You've heard hundreds like it. He wanted to give me an apartment and—oh well, why go into it all? Nothing original about it.

"I turned him down, and then he got nasty. Oh, he's quite smooth, quite the man of the world, when you meet him on the street—when you don't know him. But when he's balked, he's something else again. He said to me, 'I've got money enough to make you, if you're sensible, and if you're not I've got enough to break you.'

"I told him to let me out, that I'd heard that kind of story before. My indifference—I suppose I was really quite contemptuous — maddened him and made a regular animal out of him."

Olga smiled—a wan sort of smile. "I suppose it sounds like melodrama and 'Hearts and Flowers' and all that sort of thing, Jim." She wandered off. "I often wonder what it is about my profession—if you can dignify it by calling it a profession—that makes a man think a girl is so—so approachable. If I were a stenographer, or a filing clerk, that sort of thing wouldn't happen. Know what I mean?"

Jimmy nodded. "Yes," he said slowly, "I think I do."

"At any rate," she continued, "Sam Church apparently thought it was his legitimate right to make the sort of proposition he did. And it makes me mad, the way he takes things for granted.

"Maybe you won't believe me, but I fought him, and I not only fought him but I gave him a beating. He tried to hold me, and I scratched him and tore at him and pulled his hair until he was glad to let me go. Once I caught hold of his necktie and pulled it with all my might. It almost choked him and knocked all the fight out of him.

"Physically, Sam Church is a big coward. He was actually afraid of me after I got mad. When I left him he sort of smiled and mopped his face with his handkerchief and said, 'All right, young lady, go ahead. But don't think I'm through. I'll break you if it takes every cent I own.'

"There was a lot more he said that won't stand repeating. Honest, he talked just like the villain in 'Way Down East,' and I had to laugh at him. Said I'd be crawling back to him on my hands and knees.

"I thought he'd forget it, but I didn't know Sam Church. The next week I'd lost my job. He'd gone to the proprietor and paid him to fire me. I got another one and lost that."

"You're sure it was Church did it?" Jimmy asked.

"Of course. Of course, no one would admit it, but Church called me up later and asked me if I was ready to listen to reason. I told him he could go to——" She stopped.

The orchestra, screened off in its corner by potted plants, began to play, and Ogla bit her lip, as if the music was reminiscent of some bitter memory. Church, off in another corner of the room, was eating alone and had not seen them.

"There he sits in all his respectability," she said, tight-lipped. "And what could I do? Who'd believe me if I told the story I've just told you? He actually tried to starve me. There wasn't a place in town where I could get a job. I sometimes wonder why he's letting me keep the one I've got now. I suppose he has another interest."

Jimmy winced, as if he had been struck in the face. "Perhaps," he said softly, and was silent.

He reached over and patted her hand. "Poor kid," he said.

Tears crowded to her eyes. She laid her hand on his sleeve, looked into his eyes. "Thank God, they're not all alike," she said. "You're a—a square shooter."

And then, quite suddenly, he knew that what O'Day had told him was true—that this girl cared for him deeply. It was in her voice, in the way she caressed his arm, it looked out of her eyes.

A strange emotion held him. He saw himself as a big brute of a man, laughing and cruel, smashing a child's toy in his hands.

And he flinched. He dared not look at her just then, and show her the misery in his eyes.

CHAPTER XXXVII

A long silence fell on them. The orchestra was playing that most passionate of love songs, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah." Neither of them could utter a word; neither of them dared.

It was Olga who broke the spell cast by the music. She shrugged her shoulders and raised her hands in an airy gesture to utter a platitude. "Oh, well, live and learn, Jim."

But she dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief, and something in the action—something very brave and at once so pitiful—caught at him and wrenched him.

Then he leaned forward and held her eyes with his, talking very fast. "Olga, if I do nothing else, I'm going to see that you get a real chance after—after things are cleared up. I've got one or two things against Sam Church myself. I think I'll make it a point to meet him and see if I can't pound a few respectable notions into his head."

"No, don't do that, Jim," she said in alarm. "It won't do any good. Tell me what you have against him."

"Nothing that I have a right to speak about just now," he answered. "You know," he said hastily, "your experience is something like the one I've just been through."

Then he told her the circumstances under which he had lost his two positions since coming to New York.

"What do you make of it?" he asked. "Do you think somebody was behind it?"

"If I knew that Sam Church could possibly benefit by it I'd think he was behind it," she said positively.

"Well, I can see that perhaps he thought I was in the way the first time, but I can't understand how he could get any satisfaction out of causing me to lose this latest job."

She told him that he was being mysterious. "Why don't you explain, Jim? Can't you trust me?"

"It's just this," he said, with an attempt at lightness. "I imagine that Church regarded me as a possible rival when I was working in the railroad office."

"A rival? You mean for a girl?"

He nodded. "But there was no reason why he should continue to worry about me. He's engaged to the girl now."

She said slowly, touching his hand with hers: "And you—cared for her?"

It was some time before he answered her. "Oh, well," he said miserably, "yes, I did care." He waved his hand. "But it's all over now."

"Jim, was it the girl I saw you with that night?"

His silence told her that it was.

"I saw her on the street yesterday. She stopped when she saw me and looked as if she was about to speak to me."

An eager light leaped into his eyes, at sight of which she clenched her hands till the nails left deep red marks in her flesh.

"She did?" he asked.

"Yes, but apparently she changed her mind."

A new hope charged him, and he grasped it as a starving man clutches at a piece of bread. He thought, "If she was going to speak, it was to find out—to get the explanation I never gave her."

But as swiftly as the thought had come to him he dismissed it. "She's engaged," he reasoned, "and to a man that's not good enough to be shot. There's nothing I could do."

He felt as helpless as a swimmer carried along on a relentless tide.

He rose. "Come," he said to Olga. "I'll take you where your going." He managed a laugh. "Thanks for the lunch. It's been a new experience."

"I'm going home," she told him.

"Then I'll walk home with you."

He would have left her at her door, but she urged him to come into her apartment.

"You've never seen it, Jim. You can tell me what you think of it."

He went in with her and looked around him and admired it.

"You've got uncommonly fine taste," he told her, and failed to notice her under lip, as if to keep herself under control.

He stuck out his hand. "Well, I'll toddle along.

"Can't you stay a while? You're in no hurry, are you?"

"I have an appointment with Barry Colvin," he lied—for the appointment was for dinner.

Olga had moved very close to him, and she laid her hands on his arms, let them creep upward to his shoulders. . . .The scent of her hair was in his nostrils, like a sweet, vagrant breath of flowers on an April night.

He closed his eyes, throwing back his head, and he clenched his hands tightly, conscious that no matter what he did he was bound to hurt her.

"He's made life pretty bitter for both of us, hasn't he, Jim?" she half whispered, and raised her face to his. . . .

And as he bent down to her kiss, his arms pressing her closely to him, he saw himself again as some cruel blunderer smashing the toy of a little child.

Before Mary Lowell's eyes the keys of her typewriter, manipulated by her nimble fingers, clicked off the sentences as she translated them from her shorthand notes.

And yet as she stopped occasionally to read them over, two words, born of a troubled mind, kept dancing before her vision. They were JIM RAND.

And in her fancy she could still see his erect, broad-shouldered figure, his smooth brown hair and level eyes, his close-cropped mustache; and beside him, always, was a slender, beautiful girl—a girl with light-gold hair and violet eyes that were cool. A girl with long black lashes and black, high-arched eyebrows and delicately fashioned nose. . . . .

Her every waking thought was of those two, and her dreams, most of them, of him.

The thought rose to taunt her that but for her unconquerable pride, he would have been hers. . . . Happiness had been within her grasp, and she had let it go, and that was the greatest tragedy that life contained. . . . .

She fashioned bitter thought into words: "And he said I was marrying for money . . . selling myself for a mess of pottage. He was cruel; he tramped on me with his heel; he didn't care or he wouldn't have hurt me so."

Of a sudden she rose, passing her hand nervously across her forehead, and took her work into Mr. Hilton's office and laid it on his desk.

When she came back she sat a while in thought, the back of her hand pressed tightly against her lips. . . .

"If only I had it to do over again," she said. "I would never let it go again."

And then: "If it is not too late, God, please don't let it be too late."

Hurriedly then, before she could change her mind, she wrote him a letter, her cheeks the while as bloodless as the paper she wrote on. And the letter was a complete surrendering of the last vestige of her pride. . . .

Abjectly it told that she loved him . . . that she had broken with Sam Church . . . that she would wait for a reply. . . .

She sealed it and stamped it—a two-cent stamp and a special delivery—and, fearing that she would change her mind before she could reach the letter box, she rang the buzzer for the office boy. . . .

"Paul," she said when he appeared before her desk, "will you drop this in the mail box?"

"Yes, ma'am!" Paul was emphatic.

"Thank you," she said, and walked swiftly to the window, where she stood and gazed with unseeing eyes at the clouds that hung over the buildings of New York.

Paul left her office, the letter in his hand. Halfway across the outer office a masculine voice deep with authority, hailed him.

"Paul, come here right away. I want you to help the porter move these desks around."

"Yes sir, Mr. Barnett." Paul stuck the letter in the inside pocket of his coat and quickly and quite completely forgot all about it.

Jimmy met Barry Colvin by appointment and the two went to dinner together.

"How about a show, Jimes?" suggested Barry when they left the restaurant and were walking along the street. "Something lively to cheer us up."

Jimmy was willing. His mind was filled with troubled thoughts. All through the dinner he had sat, wordless, as Barry chatted. He talked of the law business. He had had a busy day, he said. And Jimmy sat without hearing.

Barry said, looking intently at him as they stood in front of the theatre: "I hope the show is good. It will have to be darned good to get you out of the dumps you seem to have fallen in."

"Oh, excuse me, Barry." Jimmy forced a smile.

Barry strolled to the window and bought the tickets. "Jed Black's here, Jim. He's my favorite comedian. I think he's the greatest master of pantomime on the stage today."

"Fine," said Jimmy, quite without enthusiasm.

"I've got a tough job ahead of me," went on Barry. "If I win this case, I'll have to be pretty good. I'm up against keen competition."

"Quite a feather in your cap if you win, eh? Well, here's hoping Barry." There was a returning interest evident in Jimmy's voice.

"Yep. I met a smart lawyer today, Jim. A heck of a smart lawyer. His name was, lemme see. I'm not much good at names. Oh, yes, his name was Church—Samuel Church. A smart baby, Jim."

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"Good Lord!" Jimmy exclaimed at the mention of Church's name. "Everywhere I go I hear nothing but Church—Sam Church."

Barry regarded him in bewilderment. "Why, what's wrong with you?"

"Oh, go ahead, Barry. Don't mind me. You said you had met him today? How come? Explain."

"Well, I'm representing a client with a big damage claim against the Z. and R. Railroad. I've got a good case, too. This fellow Church is the attorney for the railroad. It seems he defends all, or nearly all, of their damage suits.

"I met him to-day, and he had a proposition for settling out of court, but it wasn't big enough money for me and I told him so. I'd rather take a chance on fighting him, but as I say he's a smart baby and he told me to-day how he could throw a lot of obstacles in my way and even keep delaying the case until we get ready to throw up the sponge."

"Watch him," cautioned Jimmy. "I've heard he was a jury fixer."

"What? A big lawyer like him? Why, he's known all over the state."

"I'll tell you a few things about Sam Church, Barry. Listen."

+ + +

"Can you imagine a skunk low enough to persecute a girl the way he did Olga Maynard?" Jimmy finished.

"Well, why doesn't somebody get after him? Why doesn't she tell that story to the police?"

"You make me laugh, Barry. Who'd believe her? And how could she prove anything? My boy, Sam Church makes his money do a lot of loud talking for him."

"How do you know that Miss Maynard was telling you the truth?"

"Don't be such a skeptic, Barry," said Jimmy wearily. "Do I look like a fool?"

"I think you're a fool to be staying here, with people taking pot shots at you out of the dark. And I think if the lady is charming enough, and according to you she is all of that, why, you might be willing to give her something better than an even break."

"Oh, you're an utter fool. Won't you ever get any sense?"

"Sure you haven't fallen for her, Jim?" Barry was grinning broadly.

"You fat slob." Jimmy was laughing in spite of himself. No one could resist Barry Colvin's grin. Jimmy raised his fist threateningly. "If it was anybody but you, I'd take you by your fat neck and choke you."

He grabbed Barry's arm and tried to "talk sense" to him. "Now listen. In the first place—I'd believe anything about Sam Church—O'Day told me an earful and I know by my own limited experience with him that he's a regular snake in the grass.

"And in the second place—oh, well, what's the use of talking about it?"

"And in the second place," grinned Barry "there's no sense to what you're saying in the first place. You sound like the fellow who was arrested because his dog had bitten a boy. He told the judge his dog wouldn't bite in the first place, didn't have any teeth in the second place, and in the third place he didn't have any dog in the first place."

GYRO CLUB SPONSOR IVANHOE PAGEANT AS JULY DRAWING CARD

Sir Walter Scott's Tale to be Reproduced on Larger Scale Than Ever

Clubmen Answer Appeal by Mayor Pendray and Get Action

Swinging into united action behind the plan, the Gyro Club of Victoria has assured Victoria of "The Return of Richard Coeur de Leon." Adapted from the pages of Sir Walter Scott's great historical novel, "Ivanhoe," the production of the pageant last year drew wide comment and attracted many thousands in the course of a short run.

This year the pageant is to be enlarged, rounded out and placed on a business footing. Already the Gyro Club, who responded to Mayor Pendray's appeal for civic interest, have secured the underwriting of the cost, and will stage the pageant on a more comprehensive basis than ever. The tilting of knights in the lists at Ashby and a thousand and one colorful scenes from the pages of the famous novel will be seen at the Arena on dates in July, to be announced later.

ON PERMANET BASIS

The Gyro Club, in undertaking the project, have placed Major W. W. Tayler in charge of production, and will assume the business management of the pageant. Gyro Sid Chiveral is named as business manager. In their first ten days of effort the Gyro Club secured the underwriting of the cost of the pageant. After out of pocket expenses are paid all assets will be turned over to a fund to create a permanent pageant production here.

It is already suggested that next year, the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation, the pageant may take the ferm of a historical review of Vancouver Island pioneer times. Such a pageant would feature the lives of the early fur traders, explorers and pioneers, in unfolding a pictorial review of the adventurous past.

The Gyro Club, now at work in one of its largest undertakings, has had an active history of community service since its formation here. The first move that attracted city wide attention was the "Use Your Vote" campaign which led to a reawakening of interest in civic affairs.

The Gyro Club also launched a plan to start lacrosse in the schools, and the close of that drive saw eleven teams enrolled in a school lacrosse league. "The Beauty Shop," the musical comedy staged by the club last year, created a trust fund for charity purposes. The club will produce another musical cemedy this Fall. Composed largely of the younger business men of the city the club some time ago drew Dominion-wide attention to a plan to have twenty minutes talks on Canadian battle history given in the schools. Ypres, the Somme, Vimy, Passchendaele and other historical engagements in Canada's war history were featured in the plan.

Turning the same active energy to pageant needs the Gyro Club membership has entered the plan with a will. This year the pageant will be presented on a more ambitious scale.

MAP SHOWS ALL B.C. MOTOR ROADS

Automobile Club of Southern California Issues Excellent Guide

A key to British Columbia's road system and a review of the scenery of the province has been offered to thousands of motorists on the Pacific Coast in a map fresh from the printing presses of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The map is possibly the most recent one printed of the roads of Southern British Columbia and marks the latest additions such as the new Cariboo road, the diversion across the Sumas Prairie and the road on the north side of the Fraser to Agassiz.

The map also shows the entire road system of the northern states from a line drown eastward from Portland.

Over the face of the map are scattered single words in red denoting the well-known haunts of game, like bear, deer, grouse, duck, pheasant and advising the tourist who loves fishing where he can find trout and salmon.

Under a convenient system of lettering the motorist can easily find where camp sites are located, where supplies can be purchased and where he can obtain fuel and oil for his car.

Wherever the letter "T" is imprinted it is a command to the motorist to "look" because he is on a point of special interest. Under the letter "F" stretches an area of forest scenery, under "R" stands a ranch where butter, eggs and milk may be purchased, where "W" crosses the river marking roars a waterfall. Many more questions does this map answer.

B. C. PICTURES

A long panel of illustrations adorns the reverse side of the map. Among these one distinguishes a magnificent view of Siwash Rock in Stanley Park, the camping grounds in Central Park, the links of the Colwood Golf Club in Victoria and other well-known places on the tourist's trail in British Columbia. And amid these pictures of pleasant scenery and intriguing sport looms the battleground where fire devoured the forest. A stern reminder to tourists to be careful with fire.

PROLONGED STRIKE BRINGS DANGER OF CALL FOR SOLDIERS

Secretary of Treasury Warns of Danger of Outbreak

London, May 10—Every day the general strike lasts increases the danger of violence which would require use of the nation's armed forces, according to Robert McNeill, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, referring to the strike in a letter read at a meeting of the Canterbury Conservative Association Saturday. He said:

"This condition of affairs, as the Prime Minister truly stated in the House of Commons, means that this country is nearer actual civil war than it has been for centuries. Under the circumstances, it is incumbent upon every loyal man and woman in the country, whatever their ordinary political opinions, to rally to the Government's support and enable them to avert unspeakable disaster.

"If the public realizes the gravity of the issue, and submits to the privations and inconveniences with as much cheerfulness as it can command, the Government, which in this matter represents the whole nation, must prevail in the end.

DANGER OF OUTBREAK

"The avowed end of the general strike is to coerce the nation as a whole and produce such general paralysis as to force the Government to surrender at its discretion to a combination of committees without a vestige of constitutional authority. If the Government were forced to make such surrender, it would be the end of constitutional government in this country.

"All the revolutionary elements in the country are of course doing their utmost to exploit the situation to their own advantage, and every day the conflict lasts must increase the danger of an outbreak of violence which would have to be met by employment fo the armed forces of the Crown, the consequences of which it is utterly impossible to foresee.

"There is no use disguising the fact that this is a very real danger, and it is for this reason that it is so imperatively necessary that the public everywhere remains calm and places at the disposal of the Government all the resources it can, to enable the administration to be carried on and to give all the help in its power in whatever direction it may be most needed in their several localities."

SECOND BROTHER TO FACE MURDER CHARGE

Robert Scott Stands Trial For Crime on Which Brother Was Found Guilty

Chicago, May 10.—Robert Scott, for whom the police searched unavailingly during the trial of his brother, Russell Scott, for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, must go to trial June 16, for the murder, Judge Gemmill, in criminal court, announced to-day.

Robert, found in a California prison, after Russell had escaped hanging for the crime when a jury found him insane, was returned to Chicago and recently was found guilty of a robbery charge.

Maurer was fatally shot in 1923 when two men held up a drug store. Russell during the trial which resulted in his conviction, implicated his brother.

STRIKE THREAT

Belfast, May 10.—A general railway strike in Ireland is now a possibility, according to Labor leaders. The strike would not be connected directly with the general strike now in progress in Great Britain, but would hinge on a circular issued by the Associated Irish Railways calling for a graduated reduction beginning in June.

Week-end Demonstrated the Value in Keeping People Informed

Strike Newspaper of Government Approaching 1,000,000 in Circulation

London, May 10 (Canadian Press Cable)—If ever the radio demonstrated its utility, it was during the week-end when city workers, their feet blistered from pilgrimages to and from the city during the last week, sought rest in the suburban fastnesses and listened through the medium of wireless to reports of the general strike situation throughout Great Britain. The potency of the wireless in this time of wholesale civil trouble will perhaps come to be regarded as one of the most surprising discoveries of this disturbed period and as a proof of the wisdom of the recent decision of the Government to retain supreme control of this means of communication.

Throughout Saturday and Sunday broadcasts of wireless information were made every few hours.

PREMIER HEARD

Saturday night Premier Baldwin's voice was heard within the four corners of the kingdom. Last night Most Rev. R. T. Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury, preached a sermon over the radio and Viscount Grey of Falodon delivered an address.

One of the most vital matters handled by the wireless stations concerns the train services, about which broadcasts are made nightly.

GAZETTE GROWS

London, May 10.—The British Gazette, strike newspaper organ of the Government, reports that shortly its circulation will exceed 1,000,000 daily, and that it will be available regularly in all parts of the country. Last Saturday 836,000 copies were run off the press.

The newspaper declares the workers in the plant are receiving the normal rate of pay, and are not asking for more.

CONDITIONS WORSE

London, May 10.—Whatever the end so far as the nation is concerned, it must be worse after than before the general strike.

This was a statement made by J. H. Thomas, who as secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen is the foremost figure on the Labor side. He was addressing a strikers' meting at Hammersmith, and declared he had never disguised the fact he was not in favor of the principle of a general strike, but he maintained that while it was wrong to force the employers to negotiate under threat of a strike, it was equally wrong to ask the worekrs to carry on negotiations under threat of a lockout.

BALFOUR'S VIEWS

London, May 10—"An attempted revolution," was the Earl of Balfour's characterization of the present general strike, throughout Great Britain, in the course of a signed statement which appeared in to-day's issue of The British Gazette, the strike newspaper organ of the Government.

The effects of the success of this movement would be "to bring ruin, swift, complete and irresistible, upon this country, "Lord Balfour declared.

"Two hundred and thirty-eight years have passed since a revolution occurred in this country, whose object was to secure the supremacy of parliamentary government and the traditional liberties of our people. Through eight generations it has proved successful," he said. "But we are now threatened, it seems, with a revolution of a very different kind. Its methods are being practiced before our eyes. They are to deprive the people of good transportation, employment and a free press. The conveniences of civilized life which long have been counted among its necessities, are in some cases to be immensely diminished, and in others to be brought to an end.

RULE BY EXTREMISTS

"Were it to succeed, the community would henceforth be ruled, not by Parliament, not by the parliamentary Labor Party, not by the rank and file of the trades unions, not by the moderate members of the Trades Union Council, but by a relatively small body of extremists, who regard the trade unions, not as the machinery for collective bargaining within our industrial system, but as a political instrument by which the industrial system itself may be utterly destroyed."

CANADIANS MAY AID BRITISH STRIKERS

Telegraphic Appeal May be Issued Through Labor Congress

Ottawa, May 10 (By Canadian Press)—Canadian labor has indicated its attitude on the general strike in England. A telegraphic appeal will be issued on Tuesday or Wednesday by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, to all affiliated trades council, to open subscription lists for the aid of the strikers, should the strike be then in continuation. Developments over the week-end will be the determining factor on the date for the appeal.

SEA PROVIDES DINNER MENU

Seattle, May 10.—Preparing the menu for a full-course dinner for faculty members and friends, consisting exclusively of sea foods from all parts of the globe, is the chef's job Dean John T. Cobb, of the University of Washington college of fisheries, has given himself.

It will be many months before the dinner is served, but the dishes will come from so many distant places that it was necessary to start planning the bill of fare a long time ahead. It will include octopus soup, squid broth, candied seaweed, porpoise steak, puree of shark, salmon caviar, planked swordfish, sea lettuce salad, Irish moss, shrimp butter, whale paste and dulce.

What can the sea supply for a beverage? This is one of the puzzling problems Dean Cobb still has to solve.
